E. G. Senter, from Fort Worth, Tex., sends interesting facts about the vote in his State. Cass County, for instance, "which never before cast as many as 100 Republican votes, gave Harding a majority of over 100." Mr. Senter says: "The farmers of Texas are turning toward Republicanism and protection." He predicts that a protectionist will succeed Sheppard in the Senate.

With expensive labor and expensive money facing competition of nations literally starving, half or wholly bankrupt, something must be done to meet the situation.

The first thing is to get up from the necks of Russia and Germany on which the United States is now sitting, and give those and other nations a chance to get to work and buy what we have for sale.

Wheat, cotton and other goods stored up, with values diminished to the tune of billions, will not be moved until Europe buys them. Until they are moved business will remain at a standstill. If crops are held back into next year, piling one crop on the other, there will be worse calamity.

Protection, tariff intelligently adjusted, may be part of the coming program. The immediate task is to help Europe buy what we want to sell.

Here are four items of news:

The price of crackers dropped two to five cents a pound (fancy brands).

Harding and Hughes were at Marion yesterday talking about the League of Nations.

Martial law declared in four Irish counties, Cork, Limerick, Tipperary and Kerry. Any person found possessing arms in those counties may be shot dead. The same with anybody wearing a military uniform of the Irish republic.

Five men, in rapid succession, one after the other, were put to death in Sing Sing prison's electric chair Thursday.

Of the news items of the day, which is most interesting? You would get as many answers as there are items to that question from any dozen men now. A thousand years from now none of the items will seem interesting except the electric killing of five men with deformed minds. All died calmly, two smiling and one, Cassidy, sang, "Oh, What a Pal Was Mary," as he passed through "the little door."

The future will say that the brutality of this age was proved, and illustrated in that small room where "civilization" murders its murderers and sets the example in killing.

If you are thinking of buying anything, and you OUGHT to be, it may encourage you to know that merchants, practically without exception, are now selling goods for less than the merchants paid when they bought them. Goods were bought while prices were high, and merchants are compelled to sell below cost. This is your opportunity. To hold back for the last cent of economy is not wise and is not patriotic. Everybody would suffer if that habit spread.

Two public enemies are the man that cancels orders with deliberate bad faith, his conscience accepting a flimsy excuse, and the man that holds back business by refusing to spend what he might spend legitimately without extravagance.

The pound sterling that was worth $4.88, was worth $3.45 yesterday. The franc, normally worth more than 19 cents, was worth less than 6 cents. The lire, normal value over 19 cents, was worth less than 4 cents. The German mark, normally worth 24 cents, was worth in our money yesterday less than A CENT AND A HALF.

In Austria and some other countries conditions are worse.

THAT is what is the matter with the world and business. If you went into a store where prices were high an ever and found your dollars worth 25 cents, or only 10 cents apiece, you couldn't do much buying.

Prices will improve in America when the price of money improves in Europe. An American check at a dollar and fifty cents a bushel, seems cheap to us. Not so to Frenchmen, to whom 76 is their money, and in German money it costs $15 a bushel. So they don't buy and wheat goes lower. The same with cotton.

The world is all one business family. The problem of this nation is to help Europe, not by sending millions in loans or gifts, but by establishing credits on a business basis. Help them in a business way to resume business; don't lend them money to build battleships or buy guns.

BANDITS HOLD UP TWO

Tufts Students and Girl in Brookline Lose Watch and $100

Paul W. Brody of No. 478 Geneva avenue, Dorchester, a sophomore at Tufts College, and a Brookline girl whom he was escorting home were held up and robbed by two young men armed with revolvers at St. Mary and Ivy streets, Brookline, at 11:20 last night, accordiiig to a police bulletin made public today.

The hold-up, carried out in the height of the police drive against crime, was unusually daring. Brody and the young woman were taken so by surprise and were so excited that they failed to get workable descriptions of the highwaymen. Brody refused to disclose the name of the girl in order to save her from publicity.

Brody and the young woman just left a car and were walking through St. Mary street toward the girl's home. It was raining hard. They had just reached the junction of Ivy street when two figures darted out from behind a tree and confronted them with pistols.

Brody was told by one of the young robbers that if he attempted to resist he would be shot. While the speaker covered him with a pistol the other, with revolver drawn also, rifled Brody's pockets. They took his gold watch and a check for $100, and then even emptied the young woman's purse of small change.

Then they ran across the bridge toward Commonwealth avenue. Brody notified the police from the first available telephone. An auto filled with patrolmen from Brookline station quickly responded, but no trace of the robbers was found. The hold-up occurred on the Brookline side of the line. Had it occurred on the opposite sidewalk it would have been in the jurisdiction of the Boston police.

JEWS CHARGE SOVIET MEN WITH POGROMS

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Warsaw, Dec. 11.—The Jewish members of the Polish Diet have joined in a demand on the government for the arrest of certain members of the Russian Soviet General Staff, who are charged with organizing pogroms on Polish territory. Immediate trial of these men before a Polish court is demanded in the manifesto.

BRITISH RAID ARSENAL IN DUBLIN

Dublin, Dec. 11.—British military raided an empty shop in the heart of Dublin today and disoovered in the basement a ton of ammunition, a quantity of bombs and revolvers. Several men who were found in this "arsenal" tried to escape. One was wounded and two others were arrested.

PONZI IN PLYMOUTH JAIL

Starts Five-Year Term; Wife Goes to Prison Gates With Him

Charles Ponzi today began his five-year jail term at Plymouth. He entered Major Earl Blake's concrete hotel on Obery Heights just after 10:30 to serve his sentence for using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Ponzi was smiling and debonaire. He carried his cane with all the aplomb of a financier. He wore his pearl gray fedora at just the proper angle and his handsome fur-lined overcoat was pressed and tailored.

His faithful wife accompanied him to Plymouth. She was dressed in a handsome seal skin coatee, but appeared depressed.

Ponzi himself was as joyous as ever. Not once did he lose the calm that has marked his bearing since the August day when clouds first lowered over his brilliant scheme.

"JOE" QUINN WITH HIM.

His last journey was made in the custody of Deputy United States Marshal "Joe" Quinn, who has been his companion on all his pilgrimages into the outer world since his arrest and confinement at East Cambridge. Quinn sat in a seat behind Ponzi and

DRIFTING IN HEAVY GALE

West Waunkee, Being Towed to Boston, Breaks Towline off Cape Sable

The Shipping Board steamship West Waunaeke, which was being towed to this port by the American steamship East Indian, parted her tow line and was today drifting helplessly about fifty miles off Cape Sable, Newfoundland, according to a radio message received early today at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Since the arrival of the message, naval authorities have been unable to get into further communication with either vessel, but believe that the East Indian is standing by.

A heavy wind was blowing, and the probability was that the two vessels would have to wait until the gale abated before a new towline could be put out.

The steamship Collingsworth, which towed the West Waunaeke until her own fuel ran out, arrived in Boston today, and is being refueled in the stream. The Collingsworth left Rotterdam on November 20 for New York and went to the assistance of the West Waupeka when the latter ship first sent out S. O. S. signals.

Another radio message received at the Charlestown yard today stated that the American steamship Riverside Bridge was in difficulties 48.50 north latitude and 56.00 west longitude about 875 last night.

Lamont Gives Rules to Help Business

New York, Dec. 11.—The following formulas adaptable to business men now passing through the "temporary process of contraction and readjustment" were recommended by Thomas W. Lamont, member of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., in a statement read at the convention of clients of the George Batten Company, at the Hotel Biltmore:

We can resolve not to be frightened into panic by the wolf that may not come.

We can meet our contracts to the utmost limit of our resources.

We can take our losses like good sportsmen.

We can unfailingly be fair to our clients and customers.

We can adhere just as rigidly as ever to good ethics and fair business practices.

We must be just to our fellow workers and employes and consider their welfare as an integral part of our own.

'LEATHER GANG' IS TRAILED

Rounding Up Men Involved in Thefts Reaching Hundreds of Thousands

A big round-up of leather thieves, whose operations are said to have cost Boston dealers hundreds of thousands of dollars since last Spring, was promised today following the arrest and arraignment in the Lynn Court of four men.

They were Ralph E. Taylor and James M. Eldard, who were arrested in Boston, and whose revelations resulted in Arthur Shacaman of Allston and William Brooks of Lynn being taken into custody.

According to the police a ring of leather thieves exists in Suffolk and Essex counties, the worst that Massachusetts authorities have had to contend with in many years.

A number of Lynn business men were interrogated, and the police are certain of them admitted having some knowledge of the thefts of leather, which was sold to Lynn and Haverhill manufacturers. Much of the stolen product was made into shoes, it is said. The police declared that many more Lynn business men are to be arrested.

Taylor and Eldard, formerly employed by the Quaker City Morocco Company of Boston, were arrested in city by Special Officer Sullivan of Division 4. They were taken to Lynn and questioned by Lynn and Boston police, and much important information secured, it was stated.

The police say that the men confessed that leather valued at $30,000, stolen from the Quaker City Morocco Company, was sold to Lynn dealers for $6,000.

Shacaman and Brooks, who were accused of receiving stolen property, were formerly in partnership on Washington street, Lynn. Brooks withdrew from the firm, he told the police, because he had been "double-crossed" in some previous deal. He also declared he was being made the "goat" in the present case. Judge O'Brien continued the cases until December 18 for a hearing.

GUARD IS SUSPECT NAMED BY GIRL

Detective Discharged on Way to Hub May Have Drugged Two

Boston police ran up against a blank wall today in their effort to solve the mystery in the drugging of Mrs. Florence Stevenson, wealthy matron of Port Arthur, Tex., and her eighteen year-old daughter Ruth, who were taken from a train in the South Station after an unnatural sleep of twenty-four hours.

Mrs. Stevenson is in a serious condition at the Peppenpatte Hospital. The girl has sufficiently recovered to go to the home of her cousin, Miss Fannie A. Stowell, of No. 32 Cialla place, Newtonville.

Miss Stevenson was able to offer little of real value to the police in their investigation.

She repeated her conviction that she and her mother were drugged.

Asked whom she suspected, she spoke of a private detective they

One Man Never Heard of Charles Ponzi

A man, has been found who never heard of Charles Ponzi.

As the notorious get-rich-quick operator was departing for his rent-free estate at Plymouth today, a commuter from Squantum approached a Boston American photographer and asked: "Who's leaving Boston today?" "Why, Ponzi," replied the photographer.

"Ponzi?" queried the puzzled commuter, scratching his head. "Who is Ponzi?" The photographer sadly wagged his head and passed on without speech.

EGG COMPANY IS FINED $1,250

Convicted of Sending Adulterated Product to Providence for Sale as Food

The Boston Egg Company of Fulton street was fined $1,250 in United States District Court for conspiracy to violate the pure food act.

The concern was convicted weeks ago of shipping ten cases of adulterated eggs from Boston to Providence for sale in that city as food.

Judge James M. Morton, Jr., pronounced sentence. He at the same time suspended sentence in the case of Nathan Bovornick, president of the concern. Bovornick, more than sixty years old, was convicted of conspiracy in connection with the transaction. He appeared in court today to plead ill health, in view of which he was granted leniency.

Israel Robert, treasurer and manager of the Boston Egg Company, convicted at the same time as the company and the president, was fined $300.

WOMAN GUILTY IN LOVE ROW

Mrs. Miner Given Two Months Suspended Sentence for Attack on Mrs. Curtis

Mrs. Lillian E. Miner of Union street, Lynn, was found guilty in Lynn Court of assaulting Mrs. Catherine L. Curtis, wife of a former Boston policeman, with a loaded revolver in a dispute over the latter's husband.

She was given a two months' suspended sentence, and placed on probation for a year, with the understanding that she have no association with Alfred Curtis, husband of the woman she assaulted.

Mrs. Curtis, mother of thirteen children, ten now living, accused of simple assault on Mrs. Miner, was found not guilty. In discharging her Judge O'Brien advised her to keep away from Mrs. Miner's home.

The charges grew out of a visit which Mrs. Curtis paid Mrs. Miner at the latter's home, December 1. The two women had a rough and tumble fight in the hallway, and Mrs. Miner is alleged to have pointed a revolver at Mrs. Curtis and pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Miner testified she had no interest in the number of children Mrs. Curtis had. She had had nothing to do with Curtis, she said, since she learned he was married. She admitted keeping company with him before securing a divorce from her second husband, John McNiff, a Boston attorney.

RENEWAL OF WARFARE IS IRELAND'S REPLY TO MARTIAL LAW

RAILWAY WORKERS STRIKE

District Under Military Rule May Be Extended and Include Dublin

Dublin, Dec. 11.—Sinn Fein's reply to the challenge of martial law was seen today in a sharp attack on British troops near Fermoy and the refusal of transport workers to move military stores in the battle-swept Bantry area.

Elsewhere was the sullen quiet that precedes the storm, seeming to forecast another week and of bloodshed.

Several skirmishes between Republican troops and British military were reported in various parts of Fermoy, with the Republicans pursuing Pabian tactics against their stronger and better armed foes.

These skirmishes reached a climax in a pitched battle not far from the city, when the Republicans ambushed a large party of regular soldiers and after a brief but bitter action wounded four and escaped. The official casualties have been taken to hospitals in Fermoy.

All traffic and mail service has been suspended between Dublin and Bantry, because of the refusal of railroad and transport workers to handle military supplies for the "Army of Occupation."

With communication between the capital and stormy Bantry shut off, all sorts of rumors were in circulation here, adding to the unrest and strengthening the resemblance of Southern Ireland to a volcano on the eve of eruption.

Early extension of the martial law zone in Ireland was predicted here today. Opinion was general that Dublin will be included in the proclaimed area before the end of the year.

Dispatches from Cork reported that city quiet. The belief was expressed in private intelligence that if the proclamations means that the Black and Tans will be kept in stricter discipline than they have observed hitherto, martial law will prove a blessing.

It is estimated that 500,000 persons are under arms in Ireland. It is understood here that additional British troops are coming.

The proclamation of martial law came with such stunning suddenness that the bulk of the Irish people did not begin to realize until today the full gravity of the situation.

One of the reasons why it is expected that Dublin will be included in the martial law zone is that the severity of Winter will be driving gun-running rebels from the countryside to the cities, and in such case them are expected to concentrate in the capital.

The government is expected to make every effort to round them up in conformity with the Premier Lloyd George's announcement that disarmament of the republicans is the government's chief aim.

Belfast alone is regarded as immune. MacReady is elsewhere throughout the island an absolute monarch. Civil law has been annulled. Ball and bayonet are the sole arbiters of right and wrong.

Asks League to Let U. S. Get Irish Facts

Washington, Dec. 11.—An appeal to the League of Nations to induce the British government to "permit America to know the truth as to conditions in Ireland" was cabled today by Paul Hymans, president of the league, by Representative William E. Mason of Illinois.

Representative Mason protested against the British action in refusing to vise the passports of members of the American commission investigating conditions in Ireland.

"You and your colleagues at Geneva can do much to advance the league's influence with the common people of the world by affirming inviolability of international communications of fact and opinion as the fundamental requisite of international understanding and world peace," Representative Mason declared in his cable to President Hymans.

"In the present instance the League of Nations is afforded extraordinary opportunity to prove to America and its freedom from British domination by indicting the British government in the effort to permit the truth to be known to America as to conditions in Ireland.

"American people do not like the issuances from London as the truth of the situation and until the British government vouchsafes to the peoples of the world the right of free and untrammelled communication the American people will, in my opinion, continue to consider the world as a vast school for the British government holds the keys."

No. 2.—John Fox, Jr., novelist, married December, 1908, divorced May, 1913.

No. 3.—George Anderson, actor and theatrical manager, married December 25, 1913, about to be divorced.

No. 4.—?

Fritzi Scheff is struggling hard to get into the class with Lillian Russell. She has just filed in New Haven a suit for divorce from her third husband, George Anderson, actor and theatrical manager.

If she keeps up her previous record her fourth husband is already picked out, her friends say, and in six months' time she will promise to be, honor and obey, for a while.

In her petition the famous singer of light opera alleges intemperate habits on the part of Mr. Anderson. The suit is filed at New Haven because she answeredique Wolcott, Ct., as her home when not on the road. Attorney John F. Cassidy of Waterbury is her counsel. She also asks permission to resume her maiden name.

Fritzi Scheff is thirty-eight years old. Her matrimonial ventures have thus far included a German army officer, a popular novelist and an actor-manager. She married Anderson at New Rochelle, N. Y., on Christmas Day, 1913.

At her Wolcott home it was stated she is on tour. Anderson was said to be in New York.

PONZI BEGINS HIS 5-YEAR JAIL TERM

his wife during the railroad ride from Boston.

Ponzi has written a poem or a song, whichever one sees fit to call it. In it he visualizes money from the offering and as a result it is not published today. The title of it is "Goodby, Charlie."

He read it to Marshal Quinn and a few other officials who accompanied him on the ride from the East Cambridge jail to the South Station today.

The last trip of Ponzi began at 8:45, when Marshal Quinn took him from the East Cambridge jail and started for the South station. Ponzi was contrary at the outset. Last night he had asked Marshal Fairbairn to see to it that no more pictures were made of him.

As a result the sheriff planned to have the taxicab enter the jail yard and get him. That was done, but once outside the walls there was a halt, a brief conversation and Ponzi stepped out with his usual broad grin to be photographed. At the depot there was a crowd of about 200 people to bid him goodby. Some were friends and others were the idle curious.

EMBRACES WIFE.

Ponzi stepped along sprightly enough, paused to buy a newspaper, made good-by to those he knew and then started down the platform to the train. He turned and discovered his wife in the gathering. He went toward her.

"Hello, kid," he almost shouted as he gathered her in his arms and kissed her. Arm and arm they walked along and entered a day coach. The crowd pressed around the car window almost to the minute the train left and as it started shouted a parting cheer.

The auto trip from Cambridge to Boston was uneventful, and during the course of it Ponzi joked continuously. Once when rough spots were encountered he entreated with the chauffeur to go slow as he had no insurance policy. Then he informed his companions that if perchance desired to look at him after his incarceration they would have to pay for it.

"They will pay $1 the head," he said, "the sheriff attending to the financial arrangements. Tickets will be taken at the door. I intend to make money during the time I am in jail. Enough people have seen me free. Let them pay for the privilege now."

Ponzi bade farewell to Sheriff Fairbairn last night. Today he thanked Marshal Quinn for his many kindness and expressed the hope that he would see him soon.

Parade, if Conditions Permit, and Big Meeting at Mechanics Hall

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney and Miss Mary MacSwiney of Cork will be in Boston Sunday, December 19.

Boston will pay its tribute to the little widow and the sister of the late Lord Mayor in a mass meeting in Mechanics Building that afternoon.

This meeting will be under the auspices of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic. Indications were today that it would rank in size and enthusiasm with the great De Valera demonstration held in this city.

If Mrs. MacSwiney and her sister-in-law arrive at a fitting hour, it is probable there will be an informal parade from the South station to their hotel. She will rest until the hour of the meeting.

Miss MacSwiney Fears Attempt to Kill Her

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 11.—"When I return to Ireland, I expect to go to my shroud. The Black and Tans will exert every effort to kill me."

Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the Lord Mayor of Cork, calmly made this statement today.

"It may be that my sister-in-law and myself will not be permitted to see Ireland again," she continued. "Lloyd George may think it safest to keep us in England or he may not let us land at all. Come what may, we are happy that we have been permitted to lay Ireland's case truthfully before the American people and to refute the lies England has spread about my brother."

Future plans for the two women while they remain in the United States will be decided on the arrival of Harry Boland, secretary to Eamonn de Valera. Demands to hear them have been coming in from all sections of the country. A speaking tour may be arranged.

"But we are in President de Valera's hands," Mrs. MacSwiney said today, "and what he thinks best for us we shall do willingly."

CHRISTMAS TREE FOR HORSES OF BOSTON

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will have the annual Christmas tree for the horses in Postoffice square Friday, December 24, from 11 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon grain, dinners of grain, carrots and apples will be provided for every horse. The stalls will be covered with hot coffee and sandwiches. Officials of the society say that in spite of the auto trucks there are still as many teaming horses as ever in Boston, and they urge their owners or drivers to bring them to the Christmas tree.

BARUCH BLAMES ALLIES FOR WORLD DEPRESSION

Washington, Dec. 11.—The present serious world-wide economic situation is directly due to failure by the Allies to fix a definite sum for Germany to pay as reparations, Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the War Industries Board, told the members of that organization at a reunion dinner here.

"Until Central Europe is again getting full speed ahead the rest of the world will lag," said Mr. Baruch, "and right now Germany is in the position of one who will not work hard to fill a bottomless pit."

BACHELOR DINNER TO JOHN M. MORRISON

Friends of John M. It was necessary to discharge him in Dallas for impudence, she said. Nevertheless, he got on the train when it pulled out on the way East and was carrying two bags he did not have at the beginning of the journey.

The train from which they were taken was from St. Louis. Trainmen telephoned ahead for ambulances and police investigation, when the woman failed to leave their compartment and inquiry disclosed that they were dazed and exceedingly ill.

When they were taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, neither could explain her condition.

The mysterious private detective was cagged to convey the two Fort Arthur women across the continent because Mrs. Stevenson was afraid to travel through "the wild parts of Texas," her daughter said today.

Miss Stevenson did not say whether the detective was engaged through an agency.

It is expected, however, that the police would make inquiries into his identity.

The motive of whoever administered th dereg to the woman is not apparent. They do not report any of their money or jewelry missing.

They came East to visit Miss Stowell, the Newtonville cousin.

CITY SUES MRS. SLATER TO COLLECT BACK TAXES

City Tax Collector Frank R. Deland has brought suit in the Suffolk County Superior Court against Mrs. Mabel H. Slater of No. 448 Beacon street to recover $3,550, alleged to be due the city on back taxes for the years 1916 and 1917. These taxes, says Deland are on personal property. An effort also will be made to determine the legal domicile of Mrs. Slater. It is alleged that her domicile is in Boston.

"Peace and Good Will!—When?"

At this season of the year our thoughts automatically turn to the event which is the Babe of Bethlehem, and the message of the angels as their song, "On earth peace, good will toward men." For centuries our hearts have yearned for the fulfilment of this gladsome message. We hear it sung around the streets of the Great King of Glory, who will soon usher in the rapid wars of human nature and the increase of his government and peace shall never be an end. Come and hear this comforting message. SEATS FREE. NO COLLECTION

CALL COBB ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO. BANKRUPT

The Cobb Electric Appliance Company of Boston has been petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy. The names and claims of the creditors are: Earnestead Still & Sterilizer Company of Boston, $16,987; John McCarty, Boston, $10,000, and George L. Ellsworth, Boston, $350. The petitioners allege the company, while insolvent, attempted to make an assignment to the Newton Machine Screw Company, in an effort to make that concern a preferred creditor. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against the Standard Hotel & Restaurant Supply Company. The creditors are Chamberlain & Co., Inc., Boston; John T. H. Wheeler Company, Boston, and William J. Haine. The claims are close to $2,000.

ASK NEW ENGLAND TO SERVE AS SANTA CLAUS

New England is asked to play host on Christmas Day to thousands of hungry children in Europe, in an appeal sent out by John W. Hallwell, chairman for Massachusetts of the European Relief Council, of which Herbert Hoover is the head.

Thousands of Christmas cards with blanks for contributions attached, are being scattered all over this section by the Y. M. C. A. Ten dollars will save a child from starvation until the next harvest, $1 will feed a child for one month, says the appeal.

Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, is national treasurer of the proposed $23,000,000 fund. Herbert L. Gutterson, formerly of this city and a Harvard graduate, has charge of the national organization. Massachusetts contributions are to be sent to James Jackson, treasurer, No. 166 Devonshire street, Boston. A nation wide collection will be taken in the churches.

'DON'T MARRY A GENIUS,' MRS. KINRAIDE TELLS GIRLS

'ORDINARY MAN' IS BEST

Woman Who Sues Inventor for Separate Support Tells of Her Marital Troubles

"Don't marry a genius, and above all, don't marry a man twenty years older than yourself."

This is the advice of Mrs. Ethel S. Kinraide, wife of Thomas B. Kinraide, international X-ray expert, scientist, inventor and fifty-six-year-old husband of a woman twenty-three years his junior. Mrs. Kinraide is suing her husband in the Barnstable Probate Court for separate maintenance.

A young woman, with a soft voice and kind eyes; a motherly woman whose joy is her children, Mrs. Kinraide speaks of her sorrows, her marriage and the future. And she advises girls who may be placed in the position in which she was placed to do far different.

"One of the greatest causes for unhappiness of married people," she says, "is too great difference of age. A woman should never marry a man more than ten years older than herself.

"It is not fair to herself. It is not fair to him. I wish I had known as much about this as I did when I was a little girl of sixteen, was urged into marrying Mr. Kinraide. If I had, much unhappiness would have been spared us all.

"I was a very childish girl for my age," she said, "and I did what I was told, little asking. My mother wished me to marry Mr. Kinraide. He had means; he seemed to love me; she was ill at the time and hardly expected to live long. If I married Mr. Kinraide I would be taken care of and she need not worry.

"As I look back on it now, I pity that little girl. You see, a youngster of sixteen knows nothing about what love means. I know now that I never loved Mr. Kinraide. I thought I did. And when the two oldest babies were born he loved them devotedly. I was deceived about my own affection for him.

"As I look back, I think perhaps we might have been more successful in our marriage if only he had not been home all the time. He is an inventor, and when he works he concentrates to the exclusion of everything.

"He always works at home, and I think it is better, in a happy married life, for the husband to leave home in the morning and come back at night. His wife has a chance to do her duties about the house and when he comes home she is glad to see him back.

"My advice to girls also is: 'Don't marry a genius. Marry just an ordinary man.'

"A genius or an inventor, as a husband, is not the success an ordinary man is, who lives regularly. When a woman is adding to her life's happiness, it is fair to give credit where it is due. My husband was always most generous to me, and to his children. I had unlimited credit at the store always, and he never once questioned my bills.

"I tried to do my share. I loved my children. I never had a nurse-maid for them; I took care of them myself, and was glad to do it. Distressing things have been cited in court, which I never would mention, but I love my mother, and I do not blame her for anything which has happened. I blame somebody else.

"It seems to me a woman such a tragedy that her marriage should end in ruin, while she is still young. But, out of the ruins, grow new hopes, dreaming of happiness. And that dream is a real one, and in the country, small enough so I could do the work myself, have my children with me and not a comfort and peace and joy and right living surround us."

$5,000,000 KING ESTATE GOES TO HOME FOR AGED

Chicago, Dec. 11.—In a decision rendered by Judge Jesse Baldwin, the so-called second will of the late James C. King, wealthy lumber man, which purported to leave an estate valued at between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 to his widow, who later was killed mysteriously, was for the second time held to be a forgery. The estate under the terms of the original will, which was upheld, is given to a home for aged men.

Judge Baldwin's decision brings to an end a long legal battle waged by Gaston B. Means and Mrs. Mary C. Melvin, sister of the dead woman, who claimed the estate.

NIGHT FREE FROM HOLD-UPS

Police Roundup of Suspects, Gunmen and Thieves Showing Good Results

There was not a hold-up in Boston Friday night, for the first time in recent weeks.

Superintendent of Police Crowley in making this announcement declared that the police campaign to rid the city of thugs, gunmen and undesirables generally was having its effect. More than forty men were rounded up Thursday night.

Police inspectors are now performing night duty in the residential districts as part of the general police program to cope with the criminals who have caused terror throughout the city for the past few weeks.

The inspectors are working in shifts and at the same time co-operating with the plain clothes men assigned from various stations.

Chief McGarr believes that this move will be instrumental in putting a stop to the holdups and other depredations because of the inspector's knowledge of the criminal type and their familiarity with the faces of many well-known vicious characters.

Of the latest groups arrested four were taken in at the City Hall avenue station, six at the Dover street station, one at the Lagrange street station, two at the East Dedham street station, four at the Dudley street station, two at the Roxbury Crossing station, seven at the Athens street station, four at the Fields Corner station, one at the Brighton station, three at the Charlestown station and three at the Mattapan station.

COOLIDGE AND PETERS TO SEE STARS PERFORM

Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters will make short addresses, and General and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards will occupy seats on the stage at the benefit performance for the Children's Hospital and Convalescent Home to be given Sunday evening at Mechanics Hall. Fred Stone is coming from New York to participate, and every theatre in Boston will contribute to the program. There will be numbers by Francis Wilson, Joe Wolf Hopper, Fay Bainter, Stella Heban, Thomas A. Quinn, Edward Illingworth, Gen. Aymerm, the quartet from "Way Down East," girls from "The Night Boat," from "The Sweetheart Shop" from "Vogues and Vanities" and "Erminie." The box office will be open at one o'clock tomorrow.

SPECIAL APPEAL FOR ARCHDIOCESE POOR

A special appeal for the poor of the archdiocese is made in the current issue of The Pilot, official Catholic organ. The diocesan charitable bureau finds many extra calls upon it, says the appeal. Many stories of want and destitution are referred to it, "stories which would stampede people into giving generously if only they could hear them. A gift to the charitable bureau," adds the appeal, "would be put to good use at this time, and would make Christmas happy for many poor families."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MAY FIX 7,500 LIMIT

Believing that the organization will within the next week become the largest commercial body in the world, reaching well beyond the 7,500 mark, the board of directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has sent a referendum to the members on the question of making 7,500 the maximum limit of the membership. Ballots on the referendum will be counted on Friday, December 17.

JILTED GIRL ON ELOPEMENT EVE

Betty Tevis Ended Life After Breaking Pact With Fortune Hunting 'Lounge Lizard'

New York, Dec. 11.—The New York American has learned of the amazing suit of a young fortune hunter for the hand of Miss Betty Tevis, eighteen, who Thursday night committed suicide.

According to the New York American's informant, who named a twenty-four-year-old New Jersey society "hanger on," when the man learned that Miss Tevis was not likely to come into a fortune for a matter of years he jilted her on the eve of an elopement.

The jilting is believed to have occurred during a telephone conversation to Miss Tevis at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph T. Talbert, No. 110 East Fifty-fourth street, where Miss Tevis had been residing since last July. Mrs. Talbert is the widow of Joseph Trult Talbert, a former vice-president of the National City Bank and widely known in financial and exclusive club circles.

Mrs. Talbert, refusing to disclose the suitor's name, partially revealed the brief history of the infatuation that led to the suicide of her sister. The name was given to the New York American by another source, both the assumed name under which the younger "hanger on" traveled in fashionable Manhattan sets and his real name.

It was under an assumed name that the man was introduced to Miss Tevis in the grill of the Hotel Plaza two weeks ago. A close friend of the girl presented the alleged imposter, who escorted Miss Tevis to her home and is said to have lost no time in placarding the representation that he was several times a millionaire, that he graduated of Yale and a member of the Yale Club.

According to the New York American's informant, the suitor was a "lounge lizard" and a "person who lived by his wits." Close friends of Mrs. Talbert and the late Miss Tevis indicated that the fortune hunter is not liable to any legal charge in connection with the suicide, but that several persons, whose names are listed in the Social Register, are seeking him and will deal with him physically.

It was added that the man in question pressed his suit with ardor up until a few days ago, and that he was accepted. That Miss Tevis believed the man's account of himself was a true one, and that he had honorable intentions, was indicated by friends who said they were led to believe that the couple were engaged.

WILSON DELAYS NAMING MEDIATOR TO ARMENIA

Washington, Dec. 11.—President Wilson has decided to delay the appointment of a mediator for Armenia and Turkey, pending receipt of full information concerning the reported treaty between Turkey and Armenia, it was said at the State Department today. The State Department has no confirmation of the treaty nor of reports that Soviet forces are in control of Armenia.

CRACKER MAKERS REDUCE PRICES

A drop in the price of crackers, in some instances 20 per cent., has been put in effect by the National Biscuit Company and the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company. The companies announce that the public will profit as soon as dealers dispose of stocks on hand. There will be no immediate reduction in the price of package goods because of the high cost of marketing and containers.

HUGHES MAY BE IN CABINET

Marion Reports Indicate He Will Be Next Secretary of State

By International News Service.

Marion, O., Dec. 11.—Did Senator Harding offer to Charles Evans Hughes the post of Secretary of State? This is the question which is agitating political Marion today.

Senator Hahrding and former Justice Hughes were in each other's company constantly from the time Hughes arrived until he departed. None had the temerity to ask Hughes whether he had been tendered the post in the presence of the man who has the disposal of the office.

Hughes was all smiles when he and Senator Harding left for Columbus together.

The Senator seemed equally pleased with the result of the conference. Harry M. Daugherty, the Harding preconvention campaign manager, probably knows. He is known to be close in the councils of the President-elect and he travels East on the same train with Justice Hughes, at least as far as Harrisburg. Daugherty, however, when asked earlier in the week about the cabinet situation, expressed himself as follows:

"I don't know and if I knew I would not tell without express permission from Senator Harding."

Hughes issued a statement after his interview which was interpreted by many as indicating that an accord had been reached on the outline of a foreign policy and that Hughes had been selected to carry out its provisions. It is known that he has been under consideration for a cabinet post. It is known likewise that he wishes or would accept such a position.

PATROLMAN SUES WIFE'S PARENTS FOR $20,000

Patrolman John J. Maher, of Station 19, Mattapan, World War veteran, has filed two suits for $10,000 each against his parents-in-law, Rudolph and Anna A. Hockmuth of No. 611 South street, Walpole, for alleged alienation of the affection of his wife, Ella M. Maher.

Maher claims his wife's parents influenced her to leave his home and that she refuses to return to him. Mrs. Maher has entered suit for divorce, alleging excessive drinking and cruel and abusive treatment. Maher is going to contest the divorce suit.

B. U. BUDGET EXCEEDS MILLION-DOLLAR MARK

At the annual meeting of the Boston University corporation held at Lenox, President Lemuel H. Murlin announced that this year's budget exceeded the million dollar mark. The first budget of the university, two years ago, was for $150,000. At that time the enrollment was only 1,500, while this year over 5,000 students are attending the university.

The following trustees were elected: Ernest P. Dane, Alfred R. Meyer, Robert C. Potter and Walter W. Taft. The following trustees were confirmed: Robert W. Atkins, Elmer J. Bliss, Bruce Fenton Carter, Preston Clark, Lyford A Berrow, Frank Remick and Addison L. Winship.

SALEM HOSPITAL SELLS $250,000 MAYNES BLOCK

The estate of the late John E. Maynes, valued at over $250,000 and consisting of three business blocks of three stories each on Essex street, Salem, and five tenement houses in the rear, was sold in a deal to John E. Koen and William H. Koen. The brothers are theatre owners in Haverhill, Brockton and Salem, and say that their new purchase is for investment purposes. The property was left in Mr. Maynes' will to the Salem Hospital, and the trustees of the hospital announced it through David Frye of Congress street, Boston. It is said that the purchase price was over $250,000.

MISS ANNIE E. WHITTIER, LYNN TEACHER, DEAD

Miss Annie E. Whittier, former president of the Lynn Teachers' Club, the Essex County Teachers' Association and vice-president of the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers, is dead at her home, No. 112 Maple street, Lynn, in her sixty-first year. She taught for forty years in the Lynn schools and retired on September last, on account of illness, as principal of the Pickering Grammar School. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from her home.

K. OF C. TO RECRUIT PASSENGER AVIATORS

New York, Dec. 10.—A cry for more airmen has been heard by the Knights of Columbus, according to a statement issued by the organization today. A mail and passenger service to be established for the Winter months between Havana and Key West has asked the Knights to furnish eight aviators, four mechanicians and twelve mechanics' laborers. The request specified that the men should have experience in the aerial section of the navy. The men will be recruited at the K. C. Lonsdere but next Tuesday.

SOLDIER JAILED FOR THEFT OF 16 PISTOLS

Providence, Dec. 11.—Charged with breaking and entering the Andrew Harris gun store, No. 51 Washington street, and stealing sixteen automatic pistols, valued at $417, Edward L. Briggs, aged nineteen, a soldier at Camp Devens, was arrested in the Union station as he was about to board a train for Boston. Two pistols, one fully loaded, were found on his person. The other fourteen were recovered by the police.

Creditors of the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, who were recently granted a 25 per cent. dividend on their claims against the bankrupt, are notified, in a communication mailed today by Referee Olmstead that all claims must be proved on or before March 4, 1921.

AN EXTRAORDINARY TEST $5,000 in AWARDS

GRAND AWARD $1,000.—200 OTHER AWARDS

WHO IS SHE?

How well do you know the men and women stars of the motion pictures?

You may know them $1,000 worth.

Sometime next week—the exact date will be announced later—the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, acting together, will inaugurate an extraordinary test of skill.

There will be printed daily in the daily and Sunday editions of these newspapers—the Boston Daily American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser—photographs of famous screen stars. Five thousand dollars will be awarded to the readers who identify the largest percentage of these photographs.

Everybody is eligible to participate excepting employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, associated publications and members of their families.

Two photographs will be printed every day for consecutive days. These photographs will be partly veiled or otherwise treated in a way to test the ingenuity of readers. Patrons of motion pictures will be invited to identify them in the order in which they are published.

It is NOT A GUESSING CONTEST. It is based upon the ability of followers of the stellar figures of the cinema to identify the photographic likeness of their favorites wherever these likenesses appear.

In order that every motion picture patron in Greater Boston and as many as possible throughout New England may have an opportunity to try his or her skill and earn part of the $5,000, every department of the motion picture industry will co-operate with the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

All the prominent producers, every exchange and the managers of motion picture houses everywhere, are co-operating.

At the end of the contest the scores will be checked. A large force of clerks has been organized to handle this work.

The first award is $1,000 in cash. The second is $750. The third is $500. There will be more than two hundred other awards, totalling in all $5,000.

Watch the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser for further announcements.

SEEKS DIVORCE AFTER AIR TRIP

Actor Ockstadt Caught by Wife With Alleged Rival, It Is Charged

Washington, Dec. 11. — A thrilling airplane ride from Washington to New York is leading pretty Elisabeth Agee Ockstadt to the divorce court.

She was instructed here attorney to file an action against Charles W. (Buck) Ockstadt, one-time local football star, a marine lieutenant and now an actor, whom she married in 1917, after eloping to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Ockstadt started for New York in an airplane after a call by a mysterious woman. When she arrived at the address given her, an apartment on West 56th street, she says she was greeted by her husband in his pajamas and the woman who had found her alleged rival in bed with her mother, from the latter still had all her clothes on.

At the same time, Mrs. Ockstadt says, she recognized the strange woman as an acquaintance of her husband to whom she had been introduced in Summer previous. She declares that the two have since married, although Ockstadt has never obtained a divorce from her.

'SALLIES' WILL FEED 7,000

Christmas Dinner of Salvation Army Largest in Many Years; Special Appeals

At least 7,000 hungry men, women and children will have to be fed by the Salvation Army at its Christmas dinner this year. Already more than 1,200 applications have been received and the number is growing each day.

This means, say the officers of the army here, that the Christmas dinner this year will be far larger than any in the past five years.

Special appeals for contributions are being made by the Salvation Army. Christmas boxes already have appeared on the streets and at the hotels and terminals.

The baskets will contain an meal, a chicken, a piece of meat, vegetables, including potatoes, turnips, onions, cans of corn, tomatoes, apples, a pound of candy, nuts, oranges and a fruit.

Special attention will be paid to old people.

Mrs. W. A. McIntyre is head of the relief department, and has issued a special appeal for funds this year due to the increased demands upon the army.

This Family Tangle Is Puzzle in Relations

When a stepson marries his stepsister, what relation are they to each other and to their parents, natural and in-law?

Also what relation is their child to the father and mother and their parents?

And again—but, hold! Enough! Life is too short.

These involved questions, with others of a similar nature which would puzzle a genealogical expert, were brought up in the Roxbury Court, where Mrs. Margaret E. McCormick of Dorchester charged George A. McCormick of South Boston with neglect to provide.

It developed during the course of the argument that McCormick is a step-father, grandfather and father-in-law, while his wife is a stepmother, daughter, mother-in-law and grandmother.

As McCormick had seven sons and his wife a son, and a daughter who they married, and as one of McCormick's sons married Mrs. McCormick's daughter, the inevitable consequences, as Kipling was fond of characterizing them, of it, resulted in a list of titles for the various members of the family which would be plenty for an Indian tribe.

A court officer, who is something of a mathematical genius, demonstrated that in the McCormick family there were eight sons, eight stepsons, a daughter, a stepdaughter, a mother, stepmother, grandmother, father stepfather and grandfather.

Mrs. Margaret Slade of No 613 Columbus avenue, who acted as a war correspondent, made an attempt to describe the melee, when was at their former home in Medford after the said McCormick and his wife had words, and Det ore me, and Mrs. Slade offered an objection. Whereupon, according to Mrs. Slade, his stepfather began to throw some dishes. Mrs. McCormick threw a platter and her daughter Louise a fruit bowl, according to the witness.

"How many dishes were thrown?" Mrs. Slade was asked. "I don't know," she replied. "I wasn't counting them." She said she did not venture into the room until Mrs. McCormick's son Herbert seized a knife. It was then that Mr. McCormick went away.

Judge Palmer found him guilty, and ordered him to pay Mrs. McCormick $6 a week in addition to fill a wood originally ordered by the Probate Court.

HIGHER PAY FOR SCRUBWOMEN

State Minimum Wage Board Decides They Must Have $15.42 a Week

Scrubwomen in office buildings throughout the State will receive a 25 per cent. increase in their weekly pay after February 1, 1921, under an award handed down today by the Minimum Wage Board.

The new award will bring their weekly pay up to $15.42 for a week of forty-two hours.

The hourly wage is fixed by the board at thirty-seven cents an hour whether for day or night work.

At present these women are getting twenty-five cents an hour for day and thirty cents for night work. In explaining its award the board says that it has taken the figures collected and published by the Federal Department of Labor showing that the average woman requires a minimum of $13.40 a week to keep herself.

"It is admitted," says the board's report, "that when normal conditions again return the cost of living will be on a somewhat lower level, but owing to the impossibility of determining the rate of future decline no very great weight is attached to this apparent downward tendency."

CRIMINAL ACTION IN SCIENCE ROW EXPECTED

New York, Dec. 11.—Criminal action is expected to result from disclosures made here by Campbell MacCulloch, former first reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who resigned his membership in the church recently.

After a long conference with officials at the district attorney's office, MacCulloch told newspaper men that on November 18 his desk was robbed.

Among the documents stolen, he said, was a letter written in August, 1917, to the directors of the church in Boston by General Frank R. Streeter, for seventeen years lawyer of the late Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy.

WOMAN DIES WHEN AUTO GOES IN CANAL

Lawrence, Dec. 11.—A touring car containing two men, a woman and a boy plunged into the south canal on Merrimac street, after tearing through a pipe rail fence, causing the death of Mrs. Annie Cote, aged thirty-seven, of No. 473 Essex street, this city.

Edmond Cote, her husband, Henry J. Lambert of No. 378 Main street, North Andover, her brother-in-law, and his son, Arthur W. Lambert, aged eleven, were rescued. Mrs. Cote was the mother of five children.

CITIZENS WILL DINE GOVERNOR-ELECT COX

A complimentary banquet will be tendered Governor-elect Channing H. Cox and Mrs. Cox by the Huntington Avenue Improvement Association on the evening of Wednesday, January 5, at the Hotel Somerset. Plans for the banquet are being arranged by a committee of twenty-five members of the organization who have already perfected a most elaborate program. Invitations have been extended to a large number of prominent city and State officials. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Cox of Manchester, N. H., parents of the newly elected Governor will also be present.

FIVE RESCUED AT LYNN GARAGE FIRE

Trapped in a blazing automobile which caught fire in their Lynn garage at No. 24 Bailey street, following an explosion from a backfire which set the building ablaze, Mrs. Bridget F. Parks, aged 48, and her small children were saved from death by Mr. Parks, who dragged them to safety after a desperate struggle.

Mrs Parks, her six-year-old daughter, Ann, and her two sons, Joseph, aged four-old daughter Catherine were also less seriously burned and were removed to the Lynn Hospital.

EX-COUNCILMAN COYLE DIES IN CHARLESTOWN

Patrick Coyle, superintendent of the Charlestown flax and Electric Company, died at his home, No. 21 Arlington avenue, Charlestown. He had been employed by the company fifty-eight years.

Mr. Coyle was born in Ireland and was at one time a member of the Boston City Council. He is survived by his wife, a son, George N. Coyle, and a daughter, Mrs. William F. Riley.

TWO FINED $200 EACH FOR CARTING LIQUOR

Providence, Dec. 11.—Giovanni Milano and Alessandro Amadeo, both of Brooklyn, pleaded nolo to indictments charging them with transporting 528 quarts of whiskey before Judge Brown in the United States District Court. They were fined $200 each.

"When England and America have blown Japan out of the water, how will they attend towards one another?"

The Question Is Asked by

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

In the Second of a Series of Articles on

"America's Concern About Ireland"

"The scope of the recent pronouncements by the British Prime Minister on the case of Ireland has not yet been grasped.

"They concern America more than Ireland by just as much as American and European powers are stronger than Ireland.'"

"Winston Churchill has condensed Lloyd George's justification of the subjugation of Ireland by any means and at all hazards into a single phrase.

"'Ireland, he says, is a 'fearful danger' to England.'"

"What is this fearful danger?

"It is very simple. Ireland is poor, but submissive. . . . Battleships are beyond the reach of poor little nations, but no nation is too poor to make a floating mine that can sink a battleship."

"America has a practical monopoly of helium, the only gas that can float an airship and yet resist the fiery darts that brought down the Zeppelins in blazing ruin when they were filled with hydrogen.

"There can be no surety for England until she is mistress of these helium gas geysers. She must, therefore, put an end to the rebellious spirit of her American colonies and tear up the Declaration of Independence. . . . America's people may object.

"The soldier's position is so dangerous that he must not take any risk that he can possibly avoid by destruction, pestilence, depopulation, devastation or any other available means of disabling his adversary, and he must TREAT EVERY ALLY AS AN AUXILIARY WHO ONE DAY MAY BECOME AN ADVERSARY."

RUSSIA'S STORY BY VANDERLIP

Financier Says New Republic Seeks to Spend Billions in America

The International News Service presents herewith an exclusive wireless interview with Washington D. Vanderlip, head of the syndicate of Pacific Coast bankers and financiers, who is returning from Russia on the liner Aquitania. While in Moscow, Mr. Vanderlip obtained territorial and economic concessions which have caused a world-wide sensation. The International News Service wirelessed a number of questions to him. Below are his answers received by radio.

By WASHINGTON D. VANDERLIP,
By Wireless to the International News Service.

Copyright, 1920, International News Service.

Aboard the Steamship Aquitania, Approaching New York, Dec. 11.—Complying with the request of the International News Service for a wireless interview, I am herewith sending, by the Aquitania's radio, my answers to the questions you wirelessed to me.

"What are the results of your mission?" you ask.

"Briefly summed up, the results of my mission to Soviet Russia consist of the concession of 400,000 square miles of territory, in return for which Russia asks a chance to purchase $3,000,000,000 worth of goods in the United States. The Vanderlip syndicate acts as fiscal agents.

"Russia asks immediate trade relations with the United States. She considers America—spite of the Wilson invasion of Murmansk and Siberia—her only friend and even though England signs an agreement resuming trade, Russia will give the bulk of her orders to us. She declares, however, that she will not beg on our doorstep much longer.

VIEWS ON ENGLAND.

"What is Britain's present attitude? Will she recognize the Soviets?"

"Russia expects England to sign any day. My contracts were at first ridiculed in England, then they caused a panic. British labor was circularized with my interviews and threats were made that Britain's workmen will lay down their tools unless the British government signs.

"What are your future plans?" I am asked.

I expect American manufacturers and labor organizations to carry my fight for trade relations to Congress. I have blazed the trail. Success will mean the returns of prosperity of $10,000,000 Russians bereft of all for seven years and willing to work for us.

Europe will continue to fight and starve and seek our charity until her granary—Russia—is reopened.

Restoration of trade relations with Russia will do more than the League of Nations could ever do. It means putting a stop to quarrelling and going back to work.

"Have British financiers obtained concessions from Soviet Russia?" is the next query.

No. British financiers have not obtained concessions. Japan will stick to Siberia until the Russians get locomotives. Russia is determined to reclaim Vladivostok and is ready to carry on for years."

"What is the Russian economic situation? What are Russia's prospects for Winter?" you ask.

RUSSIAN FOOD PLENTIFUL.

There is plenty of food in Russia, except in the large cities. Now that locomotives will be released from the Polish and Wrangel fronts, conditions will improve.

How did Lenine and Trotsky strike me? Lenine has an intensely active mind. He is a scholar. He laughs at a good story and can tell one, too. He is the idol of his people. I believe he is bringing about a gradual change from the left to the right.

SOMERVILLE SERVICE IN MacSWINEY MEMORY

A service in memory of the late Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, will be held tomorrow evening in St. Ann's parish hall, Thurston street, Somerville. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Francis J. Butler, pastor of St. Ann's Church; the Rev. M. J. Doody of Cambridge, and the Rev. N. Properzi, pastor of St. Anthony's Italian Catholic Church of Somerville.

There will be a tableaux and a musical program will be given by Miss Joan Parsons, Miss J. O'Shaughnessy, Miss Nora Burns, William H. O'Brien, Alfred Boyle and John A. O'Shea, director and organist at St. Cecilia's Church, Boston.

4 MILLION PENSIONERS ASK GERMANY FOR RAISE

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Dec. 11.—Four million pensioners and government insurance annuity receivers have applied to the government for a "raise" to meet the high cost of living. The "raise" demanded aggregates two billion marks a year.

From the standpoint of the number of persons making the request it is the largest demand ever made upon the government. It includes more than 1,500,000 orphans, 955,000 invalids, 242,000 old age pensioners, about a quarter of a million widows, not to mention the immense number receiving accident and sick insurance benefits.

With Chinese college students as guests, with an entertainment consisting in part of Chinese music and Chinese speechmaking, the monthly meeting of the Men's Club of Eliot Congregational Church, Newton, was given a true oriental setting.

More than fifty Chinese students, both young men and women, representing Technology, Harvard, Boston University, Tufts, Wellesley, Emerson College of Oratory, New England Conservatory of Music and Mt. Ida School, attended the meeting given in the vestry of the church.

The wives of members also assisted in the entertainment of the guests. The hall was arranged in cabaret style and the Chinese students were given places at the various tables. That all present might become acquainted with their guests the hosts moved from table to table during the evening.

Besides an address of welcome in English by the pastor of the church, Rev. H. Grant Person, the Orientals were also welcomed in their own language by George H. Ewing of the Burdett Business College.

Chinese music was supplied by H. C. Hang, F. H. Hsu and T. H. King of Technology. Miss Wai Sheung Sii of the Emerson College of Oratory gave recitations. H. Y. Tsui of Technology told Chinese jokes. T. L. Hsi, president of the Harvard Chinese Club, thanked the club on behalf of the guests.

Mrs. E. B. Botsford gave whistling solos, accompanied by Miss Gwendolyn Currie at the piano and Harvey Hodges, violinist, and for a closing number all the students sang the Chinese republican national anthem.

HIDE FACTS IN DEATH CASE

Arthur Mudgett Trial to Reveal Mysteries of Killing of Vermont Girl

Hyde Park, Vt., Dec. 11.—Prospect of interesting disclosures at the trial of Arthur Mudgett, the thirty-eight-year-old lumberman, on the charge of killing Amy Shonlonggod nineteen, is bringing residents from all sections of the State to this town. The trial begins Monday before Judge Sherman R. Moulton in the Lamoille County Court.

Mystery has been a prominent element in the case, and even on the eve of the trial it spreads a cloak over the personnel of the witnesses. Neither government nor the defence has hinted as to who will testify, but the trial will be made known for the first time the discoveries made by the authorities when they examined the body and made an autopsy.

The victim was a native of Stowe. She secured employment at a factory in Johnson, and became a boarder at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Foster, where several girl students of Johnson Academy boarded.

Arthur Mudgett, a lumberman, noted for his abilities as a feminine charmer, was another boarder. Married, he had been separated from his wife six years. He paid marked attention to Miss Shonlo, although the latter's suitor, Irving Fletcher, of Stowe, was a constant visitor at the boarding house.

July 31 last, Miss Shonlo disappeared. Three days later her body was found beneath a huge spruce tree, near the cemetery at Johnson. There a girl mill worker stumbled across the body. Dr. Stone, State pathologist, performed an autopsy, which, it is said, disclosed that there had been an attempt at an illegal operation. There were marks of violence on the body.

Edwin C. Brown, a Boston detective, was employed. Mudgett was arrested, charged with murder. Following a preliminary hearing, he was held for the Grand Jury, which returned a true bill.

ALL CLEWS FAIL IN DANIELS CASE

No One in Missing Woman's Family Knows Where She Has Gone

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Miss Maud M. Daniels, secretary to the directors of the Christian Science Church, who vanished November 23, was deepened today when a letter was received from her sister in Denver, Col., saying that none of the missing woman's family has any information concerning her whereabouts.

Every clew has been followed in vain by the authorities. Her friends fear that she is dead.

The letter was received by Mrs. Marie Le Clair, who shared her apartment at No. 94 Gainsboro street, and was in answer to one written by Miss Le Clair, telling of Miss Daniels' disappearance and requesting information.

TWO BULLETS IN HAMON'S BODY

New Testimony Tends to Strengthen Case Against Fugitive Sweetheart

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 11.—The net of circumstantial evidence involving Clara Smith Hamon, fugitive "sweetheart" of Jake L. Hamon, multi-millionaire oil magnate, with his alleged murder is strengthened.

The prosecutor is known to have the testimony of witnesses who viewed Hamon's body in the city morgue, which declares that there were two bullet wounds in the body.

Other evidence, including a statement from a guest who occupied a room near Hamon's apartment in an Ardmore hotel, alleges that five shots were fired on the night Hamon met death.

These two bits of evidence, it was pointed out, tend to disprove Hamon's own statement that he "shot himself accidentally."

Rumors are current here that the missing woman will surrender. Prosecutor Brown denied that any arrangement had as yet been made with him.

DETECTIVES GUARD WIDOW OF HAMON AND DAUGHTER

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the slain Oklahoma oil magnate, has returned to her home in Chicago, it is learned. Mrs. Hamon returned suddenly and went into seclusion at her Sheridan road apartment. Two detectives are standing guard over Mrs. Hamon and her daughter.

FOREIGN ATTACKS ON U. S. SHIPPING CHARGED

New York, Dec. 11.—The charge that foreign interests are resorting to every open and secret means to destroy the American merchant marine, and to defeat the purposes of the merchant marine act passed at the last session of Congress, was made here by Senator Wesley Jones, Republican, of Washington, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee and author of the act which bears his name.

"The man or the newspaper who would discourage the upbuilding of our merchant marine is fighting the battle of alien interests," Senator Jones declared. The statements were made in a speech before the Academy of Political Science at the Hotel Astor.

MANY ARRESTED IN LAWRENCE POLICE DRIVE

Lawrence, Dec. 11.—Many arrests have been made here in the police crusade against suspicious persons. City Marshal O'Brien has issued orders for the police to take in custody every person who has no visible means of support. This step was taken as the result of the drive against the undesirables in Boston, which might have a tendency to drive the criminals into Lawrence, it was declared.

ARREST FOUR ARMED BANDITS IN CONNECTICUT

Stratford, Ct., Dec. 11.—Following the holdup of a truck and forcing the driver, Lucino Farina, at the point of revolvers, to tow their automobile to Stratford Centre, four armed men were arrested here.

One of them, Charles Russo, admits escaping from Blackwell's Island prison, New York.

"THE PAGANS" HAS QUARTET OF STARS

A producer who attempts to put four stars in one play will probably wind up in a sanitarium, but the owners of "Pagans," which visits the Plymouth next week, profess to find it good going so far.

The stars who will twinkle in "Pagans" are Irene Fenwick, whose work in "Song of Songs" will not soon be forgotten; Helen Ware, who is one of the best emotional women in the business; Alice Fischer, a fine performer, and Joseph Shildkraut, who got most of his glory abroad.

Up to date no murder has taken place in the cast of "Pagans"; no stampede for the spotlight has disturbed the serenity of the entertainment, and the quartet of luminaries are as amiable as four old ladies playing bridge.

Nevertheless the insurance companies cannot be induced to issue policies.

By the way, the author of "Pagans" is a Bostonian, Charles F. Anthony, who before the war was prominent as a pianist here, and was a teacher at the Conservatory. He is the son of Gardner C. Anthony, dean of the Engineering School of Tufts, and during the war he wrote and directed a number of short plays for the boys in France.

Meet Miss Hanlon.

In "The Acquittal" we find the son of a great comedienne, Ned Harrigan, playing a leading role and acquitting himself so well the old man would be proud of him, and the daughter of another celebrated comedian, James A. Herne, performing an emotional part in a manner to make her daddy glad if he could know about it.

In "Erminie" is the daughter of another celebrity of a past generation, along with those hangovers from the days of Harrigan, Herne and Ned Hanlon, Francis Wilson and De Wolf Hopper. She is Alice Hanlon, whose father was one of the Hanlon Brothers, whose wonderful fantastic farce comedies, "Superbs," and their successors, have not been equalled in this generation. Miss Hanlon made her first appearance at the age of five, in one of her father's companies. Her ambition is grand opera.

Operating on a Review

Where a review has it over any other form of entertainment is that you can perform all sorts of surgical operations on it, remove its spendix, cut off its head, change the length of its arms and legs, turn it upside down, and the darn thing keeps on going.

The average revue contains about twenty musical numbers. You can imagine how important are the remodelings of "Vogues and Vanities" when I tell you that ten new musical numbers go in on Monday, as the door of Livingston Platt, artist. He is responsible for the exquisite Love Boat setting of the prologue, and it is his painting of the "Golden Gate" that is glimpsed through the window of the Benson home in the last act.

Also, his is the taste that secured many of the most striking of the costumes that do so much to adorn "East is West," and much of the bric-a-brac of that gaudy seven-year block" and the carved Buddha shrine.

Livingston Platt has, so to speak, stolen a march on every one in "The Bat," New York's gigantic hit. Johnny Dooley draws a new role called "Soloman Isies," and Grace Fisher will warble "Orange Blossom Time." In case you miss the Vogue and Vanity girls at the Brunswick after the theatre, it isn't that they are unpopular, they are rehearsing.

Rita Knows the Boys.

The hero of "the Acquittal" is a newspaper reporter. In the first act half a dozen reporters are introduced. The accuracy with which these young men are depicted has pleased the newspaper profession generally, because the stage has had hard luck with its newspaper men in the past.

There is a ready explanation of why these reporters are lifelike. It seems that Rita Weiman was a newspaper woman in New York, and she knew the boys. George M. Cohan, himself, is a first-class observer, and a newspaper in all his forms has been familiar to him for many years. That's the secret.

It seems that the celebrated Molineaux case of fifteen years ago in New York was the basis of Miss Weiman's play.

Some Nice Girls.

"The Sweetheart Shop" is a good example of what clever people will do with a libretto of ordinary character and a score which is tuneful enough, but has no particular distinction. There is an atmosphere of daintiness and refinement about the piece, and it is due entirely to the presence of such charming and wholesome girls as Esther Howard, Mary Harper and Helen Ford, and a clean-cut dancing specialty by Harry K. Morton.

Miss Howard is rather a new sort of female comedienne. I hate a grotesque woman, and a fat woman trying to be funny is very tiresome. Esther Howard is neither blatant nor vulgar. She doesn't look like a beauty, thus though she is a trifle eccentric in her methods, and she earns her laughs without resorting to slapsticks.

Funny Opera.

Out in Tremont, where Edith Bennin comes from, there are some strange things with grand opera in a house down in Washington square.

Miss Bennin is a member of the Royal Comic Opera Company, which is playing at the Boston Opera House, and in "The Chimes of Normandy" next week she is down to sing the soprano role of Germaine in "The Chimes of Normandy."

"I made my operatic debut," she says, "with the American Opera Company, which was then playing an engagement at a theatre in Washington square, a place not very much different from the Washington square in New York. It has the same cosmopolitan atmosphere and the Italians down there just revel in all the old operas.

"I remember one night seeing a very remarkable performance of 'Faust.' Believe it, it was up to date. In the well-known jewel song scene, what do you suppose the Marguerite picked out of the jewel box to trill over? A wrist watch! Yes, and I've seen the heroine in 'Travista' pine away on a perfectly good Morris chair. It made it easier for her to sing, sitting upright."

A Russian from Omaha.

Where do all these Pavlowa pupils come from? That is one of the mysteries of the current theatrical season. They are almost as numerous as the sirens who claim that they were in the original "Florodora" sextet.

But there's one little dancer in town at present who has a big scrapbook full of clippings to prove that she toured with the Pavlowa troupe through Mexico and South America, rehearsing every morning with the Russian ballerina and witnessing every night the flamboyant receptions she got from the temperamental Latins. This dancer is Helen Kroner, who performs several dance specialties with a husky youth called Chester Hale in "As You Were" at the Wilbur. Miss Kroner is a native of Omaha. When she joined Pavlowa they gave her another name, something like Krowchowsky, but that's the way Pavlowa does things. Her famous understudy, Mlle. Butsova, whom Americans look upon as a typical blonde belle from Petrograd, is in reality an English girl named Boots, according to Miss Kroner. You never can tell.

"They gave us just $25 a week to start with in the Pavlowa company," says the petite danseuse in "As You Were," "and we had to furnish our stage clothes out of that, but I suppose we should be thankful to have had the chance to dance with the famous Anna."

Miss Kroner first met young Hale in Buenos Aires. He had been touring with the Diaghileff Ballet Russe. He came to Boston with that troupe. But you won't find his name on the program. They called him Ivan Tschumakeff.

A Shubert Jubilee.

A. Toxen Worm, general manager of the Shubert Theatres, announces that the week of December 27 will be Shubert week, since four Shubert attractions will be here all at once. These shows are "Maytime," "Midnight Rounders," "Passing Show" and Leo Ditrichstein in "The Purple Mask." It being Shubert week, all the orchestras will play Schubert's Serenade, composed by Franz and dedicated to Lee and Jake.

Piatt Supplied the Punk Sticks.

There has been much comment on the Chinese "atmospheric" which permeates "East Is West," the exotic comedy of universal appeal at the Shubert Theatre, but few people are placing the credit where a great measure of it belongs—at the door of Livingston Piatt, artist. He is responsible for the exquisite Love Boat setting of the prologue, and it is his painting of the "Golden Gate" that is glimpsed through the window of the Benson home in the last act.

Also, his is the taste that secured many of the most striking of the costumes that do so much to adorn "East Is West," and much of the bric-a-brac of that gaudy seven-year block" and the carved Buddha shrine.

Livingston Piatt has, so to speak, stolen a march on every one in "The Bat," New York's gigantic hit. McISAAC says that "THE ACQUITTAL" is a strong and fascinating play of mystery, superbly performed. Hollis.

GRANT MITCHELL in "The Champion" has a laughable farce comedy, which is drawing large audiences. Park Theatre.

"ERMINIE," with De Wolf Hopper and Francis Wilson. Notable revival of ever verdant operetta. Globe.

"VOGUES AND VANITIES," pretentious revue, with Johnny Dooley, Robert Emmett Keane and Billy Kent to supply the merriment. Majestic.

"EAST IS WEST," with Fay Bainter, a quaint and amusing farce with Mongolian trimmings. Shubert.

"THE NIGHT BOAT" at the Colonial sails for other ports in another week. It's amusing nonsense.

"CHIMES OF NORMANDIE" is the bill offered by the Royal Comic Opera Company at the Boston Opera House next week.

"AS YOU WERE," with Bernard and Bordoni, announces its last weeks. A fantastic affair, melodious and amusing. Wilbur.

"THE SWEETHEART SHOP," Tremont, a bright, cheerful and wholesome operetta.

"WAY DOWN EAST," Griffith's greatest photoplay, at Tremont Temple. Something you must see sooner or later.

former teacher at the New England Conservatory of Music. He is the son of Gardner C. Anthony, dean of the Engineering School of Tufts College. Besides "Pagans," Mr. Anthony has two other plays shortly to be produced on Broadway.

The central figure of the play is a young artist incapacitated as a result of the war. The interest of the play lies in the circumstances which develop in the life of this young man, who in turn betrays love for a woman who has inspired him and whose companionship is his salvation, and the wife whom he has learned to honor and love but whose lack of sympathetic understanding has made him an invalid.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"Tis true that silks and satins have had their vogue, but "The Calico Girl" will create a fashion of her own when she arrives at the Somerville Theatre to make her first appearance Monday matinee and evening and twice daily throughout the week. "The Calico Girl" on formal introduction proves to be a comedy drama that will appeal to the best there is in every theatregoer as its touches of merriment will gladden the hearts of all and its tender pathos will tug at their heart strings every so gently. Miss Anne Bronsuch, the charming and talented young prima of the Somerville Players, will play the title role.

GAYETY THEATRE

Joe Hurtig has made a heavy draft on burlesque talent for his newest offering, Ed Lee Wrothe and his best show, the production which on Monday opens next week's engagement at the Gayety Theatre. Ed Lee Wrothe has probably packed more theatres to the rafters than any comedian in burlesque. Audiences have grown accustomed to pushing houses for him in his amusing creation, "Janitor Higgins," that all you have to do to mention the name of the comedian as a coming attraction and all well trained house attaches get out the S. O. sign ready for use. The comedian has in his support this season the following well-known artists: Holly Sweet, Gwen Martin, Grace Fletcher, Teresa Adams, Will P. Murphy, Harry Brothers, Joe Hickman and Russell K. Hill. The organization also includes a fine personnel the choicest lot of chorus beauties that ever dashed across the stage and set the boys in the rows gasping for breath. Joe Hurtig, with his conception of what a chorus should be to please, has furnished a wardrobe that stands second to none in beauty and extravagance.

WALTER HAMPDEN

Walter Hampden, who is generally acclaimed as being the greatest Hamlet of the time, will open an engagement at the Arlington Theatre beginning Monday, December 20.

Playgoers will have an opportunity to see him in the role in which he won his first big success in this country. This is the part of Manners in "The Servant in the House," Charles Rann Kennedy's famous play in which Mr. Hampden played for six weeks at the Tremont Theatre in 1909, after playing the role for more than 300 times in New York. Mr. Hampden says that the times are most opportune for a revival of the play and in the few cities where it has been presented this season the responses have been most gratifying.

APPLE BLOSSOMS

The next attraction at the Colonial will be Charles Dillingham's production of the popular operetta, "Apple Blossoms," which begins a limited engagement Monday night, December 20. It will be recalled that this attraction was the supreme musical event in the past theatrical year in New York where it ran throughout the entire season.

The distinguished violinist, Fritz Kreisler, and Victor Jacobi, composer of "Sybil" and "The Half Moon," have provided the score, and William Le Baron, the author of "The Very Idea," has furnished the book of lyrics.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

Next week at the Malden Auditorium the Temple Stock Company will present George Broadhurst's tremendous popular mystery drama, "The Crimson Alibi." This play, which the author founded upon Octavus Roy Cohen's short story of the same name, has been accounted one of the most absorbing mystery dramas that has seen the stage. The mystery is founded upon a doubt of who committed a murder, any one of five personages being given brough circumstantial evidence to convict upon for the crime.

MARY GARDEN

Mary Garden is coming to town, not as a member of the operatic staff, not as any one of the great dames of history and legend whom she has made famous, such as Thais, Sapho, Monna Vanna, Griselidi, but as Mary Garden, prima donna ballada, singing songs in a concert hall. The element of glamour will not be lost, however, when she does, for she has the initial sensation which every opera goer feels when Mary Garden first walks on the stage. Because, on this occasion and for the first time in Boston, as the musical programs have it, Mary Garden will wear her diamond dress.

Not only are musical connoisseurs looking forward to hearing Miss Garden in a program of modern songs, but the thousands who have seen and heard her on the stage are anticipating what will be a more intimate glimpse of a fascinating and puzzling personality.

Among the songs and arias which Miss Garden will sing at the Boston Opera House on Sunday afternoon, December 19, will be an aria from Xavier's opera, "Glenonda"; one from Puccini's "La Bohème," Richard Barthelmey's "Trois Motores," "Le Parc de Soleil," Erlanger; "The Swing" and "My Ship and I," Reynaldo Hahn; Lullaby from Godard's "Jocelyn," with 'cello obligato, and the great aria which Miss Garden made world-famous, which she sang on the night when in one moment she sprang into fame, in the "Jewel Song" from Charpentier's opera "Louise."

FRANCES STARR COMING

Frances Starr will appear at the Tremont Theatre beginning Monday, December 27, under the management of David Belasco, in her latest play, "One," by Edward Knoblock.

Unusual interest attaches itself to Miss Starr's appearance in this new play, as it marks the third which Mr. Knoblock has specially written for her. Several years ago Miss Starr scored one of the greatest successes of her career in Mr. Knoblock's "Marie-Odile" and for the past two seasons has duplicated that success in the same author's "Tiger! Tiger!"

WALDRON'S CASINO

Extravagant claims are hardly extravagant if they are based upon fact, and that is why the producer of "The Girls from Happyland," with Lew Hilton, has no hesitancy in announcing that the production offered this season, and which will be presented next week at Waldron's Casino, is the greatest, really the biggest and the most magnificent offering ever made by this organization. To those who are familiar with the big shows given in the past seasons, this means a great deal.

SYMPHONY CONCERT FOR BASKET FUND

All the profits of the concert by the orchestra of seventy-five pieces known as the Italian Symphony Orchestra and conducted by Raffaele Martino will be devoted to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston American. BENNETT RECITAL

Louis Bennett, baritone, who gives his first Boston Hall recital next Thursday afternoon, December 16, is a native of this city. Until the war he had sung extensively in opera and concert in Europe. Mr. Bennett is now, however, concertising in America.

ITALIAN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

A musical event worthy of especial note by all lovers of standard music is to take place tomorrow night at Symphony Hall, when the Italian Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Signor Raffaele Martino, will render its first program for the Fall and Winter season. The Italian Symphony Orchestra attained immediate and sincere public approval last Spring in its brilliant work, when every member played with rare spirit and skill, and when Signor Martino fairly outdid himself.

Alice Bacchi, famous European contralto, will be the soloist, rendering selections from some of the greatest operas.

SPANISH CONCERT

On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock a joint recital, principally of Spanish classic music and opera will be given by two Spanish artists at Jordan Hall, Huntington avenue.

One of the artists is Mme. Francisca Catalina, Spanish prima donna coloratura soprano, who is well known among the South American residents of Boston, since she achieved a brilliant success throughout the southern continent, likewise a few cities here where she has appeared.

COLUMBIA MOVIE CONTEST

If Boston does not produce a new motion picture idol that may somedday parallel her success with that now enjoyed by a score or more of the screen's best known luminaries, it will not be the fault of the enterprising management of Love & Columbia Theatre. This well known playhouse, located at the South End, and which, strange as it may seem to many of the playgoing public of neighboring vicinities, is one of the best appointed playhouses in Boston in conducting a popular girls' contest in a rather unique manner. Preliminary trials of contests are held on Tuesday evenings, when a large number of the applicants occupy the centre of the stage and are given a trial in expression, poise and elocution.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH

Pretty Marion Davies is fast gaining a name for herself as the "Robert W. Chambers girl." Her beauty, expressive eyes and piquant characteristics fit her ideally to portray the society heroine made famous by this popular writer. Miss Davies, it will be remembered, was the star in Paramount's picturization of "The Dark Star." Her latest appearance is in the Cosmopolitan production, "The Restless Sex," in which she will be seen at Gordon's Old South Theatre beginning Monday.

"The Restless Sex," declared by many to be Mr. Chambers' most brilliant novel, offers an appealing romance around a young woman's ambition to be more than a wife and achieve a niche for herself in the world of art. Carlyle Blackwell and Ralph Kellard are included in the supporting cast. Robert Z. Leonard directed.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

Of unusual interest to patrons of Loew's Orpheum Theatre is the announcement that for the coming week Al Shayne, America's foremost singing comedian, and late star of the New York Winter Garden, will appear in his latest creation, "The Singing Beauty." Mr. Shayne has often been termed the Adonis of vaudeville and his popularity is unbounded. By special arrangement he will appear throughout the entire week. Other features of the bill are Grace and Eddie Parke in "A Bungalow of Songs, Dances and Ballads"; the Four Pamarda known as "The Blue Devils of Music"; Fraser and Bunce in a singing and chatting skit; Clare De Vine, assisted by Georgia Sands, in "A Study of Songs," and the Theodore Trio in sensational and amusing gymnastic stunts. The topline photoplay attraction will be Mae Murray in, "The Right to Love," one of the most thrilling romantic photodramas of late, and in the leading feminine role, Miss Murray is said to be divinely beautiful and captivating.

NEW COLUMBIA LISTS

Tandy Mackenzie is a new tenor discovered by William Thorner, the vocal instructor who discovered and made famous the voice of Rosa Ponselle, famous dramatic soprano of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company, who opened the Metropolitan season both this year and last. He sings as his first Columbia record that appealing song from Hitchy Koo, "The Old-Fashioned Garden."

Nancy Davis, another of the popular hits as "Good-bye, Broadway; Hello, France," and "Jean," is another new Columbia star who makes his first record this month.

Paul Biese's College Inn Orchestra had never been heard outside of Chicago until they made a Columbia record of the fox-trot, "Sue Us," composed by Robert Hood Bowers, and the one-step, "Speed," composed by Paul Biese himself.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA THEATRE

In addition to the usual routine of high class photoplays and vaudeville, with change of program twice weekly, at Loew's Columbia Theatre, Manager Brennan announces a continuance of the Popular Girl Contest.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

Theatregoers will have an opportunity to see Charles Ray in the screen version of Gol Smith Russell's stage success, "Peaceful Valley," at Gordon's Olympia Theatre, beginning Monday. In this vehicle, Mr. Ray reverted to the role which has made him one of the screen's greatest favorites—that of a rube.

BOSTON GIRL NEW FILM STAR

Elsa Lorimer, a popular actress of the stage and screen, well known in her home town, Boston, and Julia R. Skinner, appears in support of Carmel Myers in her latest photoplay, "The Gilded Dream," which will be one of the features shown at the Park Theatre next week. Miss Lorimer has the role of a worldly-wise New York society woman and has an opportunity to display some of the swagger gowns for which she is noted.

Elsa Lorimer was born in Boston, received her education at the Cambridge High School and the Boston College of Oratory, and was married when quite young to a prominent business man of this city.

Making the acquaintance of Daniel Frohman at a social affair, she later went to him when she decided to go on the stage. Through his influence she secured her first engagement with Henry B. Harris, supporting Robert Hilliard. After that she acquired no help, and played in companies under the management of Henry W. Savage, William Brady, the Shuberts and other producers.

Four years ago she went into pictures as leading lady of the Kinemacolor Co., and has remained in the films ever since.

Bill Writes Own Show.

William S. Hart is world famed for his characterizations of the Western roles in the numerous vehicles in which he rode to fame, but he has also portrayed the roles of the New York gangster, a burly "cop," the city idiot, a Kentucky mountaineer and a few others, but never has he had a role that he considered had all the necessary requisites to bring out his very best efforts. Hence his launching out as an artist who could write his own roles. He is now an author-actor-producer, having written, produced and played the leading role in "The Testing Block," which will be shown the closing half of next week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. The story furnishes him the role of a Westerner, known as Sierra Bill, and a cool, calculating sort of fellow though at heart he is a man's man, brave and daring.

PARK THEATRE

Dramatic suspense, alluring romance and red-blooded action to set the pulses throbbing and tug at the heart strings are some of the prescriptions made for "Hush," Clara Kimball Young's latest photo-drama, which comes to the Park Theatre next week. Add to these a wealth of scenic investiture and luxurious such as characterises all of Harry Garson's productions, and the incomparable histrionic talent of Clara Young, and you have all the elements that go to make the super-production.

"Hush" was written by Sada Cowan and is a fascinating story of American romance.

The Park management will be added the beautiful Carmel Myers in her latest success, "The Gilded Dream," which presents a story of New York society, and cabarets, the ultra-modish mansion of a society leader, and a million-dollar "petting party" at a smart seaside resort as some of the settings that give an atmosphere of lavish richness to the production of the picture, based on a popular magazine story from the pen of Katherine Leiser Robbins.

GORDON'S STRAND

Everyone seems to agree that next to perfection in production the chief requisite for a perfect motion picture is a real heart-to-goodness story. It's that type of a dramatic tale that David W. Griffith has based his latest photodrama on for United Artists' release, and this wonderfully dramatic production, "The Love Flower" will be a feature at Gordon's Strand Theatre beginning Monday, for three days only.

ALLEGE MAN HAS 20 WIVES

75-lb Husband, Accused as Bluebeard, Held in Bonds of $50,000

New York, Dec. 11.—Alleged to have twenty wives, Lawrence Schaeffer, aged thirty, who weighs but seventy-five pounds with his clothes on, is being held in bonds of $50,000, following charges made by two of his wives.

The dapper, diminutive defendant, he is but five feet tall, is also alleged to have obtained from the twenty women all whom he conferred his name, a "substantial dowry" which his victims want returned.

Schaeffer was arrested here at the instigation of his latest wife, Mrs. Estelle Farrell Schaeffer. His hearing at police court brought to light another Mrs. Schaeffer in the person of Florence Flamberg. Both women are pretty and about twenty years of age. Subsequent testimony and statements made by Schaeffer's sister gave weight to the belief that he has about eighteen other wives in various parts of the country.

His arrest was the result of investigations which detectives conducted at the request of Mrs. Estelle Farrell Schaeffer, who claims that he had secured $4,000 from her since last January for alleged business promotions. The other wife claims that Schaeffer married her July 7, 1919, left her two day later, after taking $400 from her.

Schaeffer is said to be the head of at least three corporations. When arrested he was wearing a Kings County deputy sheriff's shield.

McCORMICK TO LEAVE PARIS, VISITS GENEVA

Paris, Dec. 11.—United States Senator Medill McCormick, who has been here for some weeks studying the European situation, will leave tonight for Geneva and thence will go to Vienna, Prague and Warsaw, returning to Paris.

SELECTED

MISS HELEN A. FITZGERALD

Two women, Miss Kathleen Ennis, Republican, of No. 200 West Springfield street, and Miss Helen A. Fitzgerald, Democrat, sister of former Senator Redmond Fitzgerald of Dorchester, are slated for appointment as assistant registrars in the election department. Four men also will be named soon.

James H. Dorsey, a member of the election board, is reported to be slated for the chairmanship, a post held by M. W. Hurley for many years.

The men named are William H. Murphy, 12 Mt. Pleasant avenue, Roxbury; James Doyle, East Boston, Democrat, John T. Roach, No. 5 West Cedar street, and F. S. Brown, No. [illegible] Florida street, Dorchester, Republicans.

GIRL ASKS $5,000 FOR LOST LOVE

Property of Divorced South End Man Attached by His Former Housekeeper

Another romance has gone awry. Although Edward M. McLean of No. 814 Columbus avenue, and Miss Lallia R. Lake, who served as his housekeeper, are said to have been ardent friends for years, their affair has now entered the courts.

Miss Lake filed suit here for breach of promise to marry, and seeks $5,000 damages. Edward Carr, her attorney, has attached McLean's property pending final disposition of the case.

McLean has been divorced two or three times. Miss Lake claims that he failed in his promises to wed her after he secured a divorce from his last wife.

He maintained a bachelor apartment on Columbus avenue. As president of the West Indies Wanderers' Cricket Club, McLean is well known here as a cricket player. He is also an officer in the British Friendly Mutual Benefit Association.

Several letters coupled in unusually affectionate terms are declared to have been sent by McLean to Miss Lake and will be introduced when the case comes up. Both are from Barbadoes.

To Speak On Justice

Professor Harry Ward will speak under the auspices of the Boston School of Social Science on "The Search for Justice," at Lorimer Hall, Tremont Temple, tonight at 8 o'clock.

REV. DR. LAKE IS DENIED LICENSE

Episcopal Church Here Bars Harvard Professor From Bay State Pulpits

Rev. Kirsopp Lake, D. D., a professor in the Harvard Divinity School, Cambridge, has been refused a license to preach in the Episcopal churches of the diocese of Massachusetts on account of his radical views upon the Bible and the church.

He is a regularly ordained minister of the Church of England, but in order to preach in the pulpits of Episcopal churches of this country he must be licensed by the bishop of the diocese where he officiates.

Dr. Lake's views upon the fall of man, as described in the Book of Genesis, are out of line with traditional theology. He regards the fall as pure allegory. He puts Adam and Eve in the realm of fiction.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQ.

"The Love Flower" will be shown at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square theatre beginning Monday. The story is filled with an endless amount of action and suspense and is considered to be one of the most dramatic pictures that has ever been produced by Mr. Griffith.

CODMAN SQ. THEATRE

One of the most spectacular offerings of the current season is announced for the initial bill of next week at the popular Codman Square theatre, Dorchester. That greatest of all stage celebrities, Pauline Frederick, will be shown in the Tremont Temple tonight at 8 o'clock. Her dramatisation of "Madame X."

Amusements.

CHILDREN AMONG THE SCORES ASKING FOR BASKETS

Tags were sold regardless of weather conditions. The girls had no fear of inclement weather as arrangements had been made in advance for under-cover locations.

MET VERY FEW GROUCHES.

Christmas shoppers dropped their coins into boxes as they accepted the green tags from the young women who sold them. The Christmas spirit prevailed everywhere. Realizing that every cent that is contributed will be spent for food, the public gave generously, and with a good will. Little children can get along without many things, BUT THEY MUST HAVE FOOD.

The coins and bills dropped into the boxes will be translated into substantial dinners for thousands of hungry kiddies on Christmas Day. Only occasionally did the girls encounter grouches of the "Scrooge" type, made famous by Dickens. "Scrooge" was the exception today, not the rule. His grouchy answer to the girls' "please buy a tag" was always answered with a smile.

The tag sellers met with wonderful co-operation wherever they went. Proprietors of all the leading Boston hotels told them that it was a real pleasure to give them the privilege of selling tags in the lobbies. Managers of theatres, superintendents of buildings and Boston Elevated officials all did their utmost to make it pleasant for the young women.

Today was the second day of the double tag day. It was the BIG day, as many girls who go to school, or work, were unable to give their services until today. Nearly every school and college of any prominence in Greater Boston was represented among the pretty tag sellers. City and town officials gave their co-operation toward making the tag days a success. Tags were sold in Boston, Cambridge, Malden, Quincy, Chelsea, Somerville, Winthrop, Brookline and Newton.

Arrangements were made with officials of the National Shawmut Bank to count the money which was received. The officials of this great financial institution are always willing to assist in helping a good cause. They planned to have all the money counted quickly so that an early announcement of the total could be made.

SOME OF THE TAG SELLERS.

Many of the girls who sold tags today were so enthusiastic over their work that they did not take time to eat their regular luncheon, but partook of steaming hot "Coronation" coffee and crisp, warm doughnuts, served at tag-day headquarters, No. 52 Boylston street, through the kindness of Cobb, Bates & Yerxa Company. Vice-President James D. Casey of that firm gave the coffee and doughnuts free, and the tag sellers fully appreciated what he did for them.

Girls from the following schools were among those who sold tags yesterday: Helene Sweeney School of Dancing, Franklin Academy, Y. W. C. A. Girls' High School, Whitney Studios of Platform Art, and New England Conservatory of Music.

Some of the tag sellers were the following:

Mrs. A. A. Humphry, Mrs. O. D. Williams, Miss Ruth Foster, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Ruth Goodman, Miss J. V. Smith, Miss Dorothy Heithman, Mrs. S. N. Solomon, Scout David Marks, Scout Hyman Cohen, Mrs. George Keating, Miss Sadie MacKay, Miss E. Demeter, Master Elmer Sawyer, Miss Mary Marino, Miss Mary Demeter, Miss Anne Sharrett, Mrs. Anna Jackson, Miss Ida Freeman, Mrs. R. A. Warren, Miss Bessie Goldberg, Miss Pearl Jenness, Mrs. May Berry, Miss Beth Mae Russell, Mr. Kenneth Russell, Corabelle Ball, Dorothy Hunt, Mrs. Paul T. Rockett, Miss Lillian Sacco, Miss Rose Nazzaro, Miss Isabella Hinckley, Miss Mary Katz, Mrs. Dennis J. Shea, Miss Jenny Webb, Mrs. G. M. Sullivan, Miss Frances Joski, Miss Mildred McLean, Mrs. E. Silver, Mrs. D. P. Davis, Miss R. Walsh, Miss Jeannette Sylvia, Miss Doris Gold, Mrs. Hellene Pescaglea, Mrs. Joseph E. Perry, Mrs. M. F. Woods, Miss Emily A. Forrest, Miss Peggy Edwards, Miss Billy Bright, Miss Alice R. Miles, Miss Rosalie Davidson, Miss Helen Hirshhorn, Miss Alice Long, Pamella Stone, Marjorie Furber, Helen Neale, Evangeline Abbott, Eleanor Sommers, Florence Anthony and Madeline Gould.

John H. Merriam wrote as follows: "Enclosed find check for $10. In explanation of this check I will say it was my custom at Christmas time to give my wife a check with other gifts. The Christmas of 1918 was no exception, although it proved to be the last check I was to give her, for in just one month from that Christmas she was taken from me after an illness of only a few days. Oh dark, inevitable and awful day when one of us must go, and one must stay.' She did not use the check. I have often wondered what use I should make of it.

"Now, after almost two years, it has come to me to offer it to the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund, as I believe that from the other life this act would meet with her full approval. For, maybe after all, it is true that only death, like a narrow stream, divides that happy land from ours, so in memory or her I send this check to you. I know it will bring joy, happiness and plenty to some family, if only for a day."

One dollar came with the following message: "Hope this small mite may help some little baby, sent in by a mother whose baby died at birth."

"D. W." of Jamaica Plain sent $10 and wrote: "Your idea is a wonderful one, and I wish I could afford to give more."

Walter L. Collagan wrote: "Enclosed find $1.50 in aid of the fund from Miss Betty Collagan, aged four, her own savings."

Emory V. Tobin wrote: "Find enclosed check for $5 to help make some kiddie happy on Christmas Day."

CASEY CONTRIBUTES.

John M. Casey, chief of the license division, city of Boston, one of the most popular officials in City Hall, sent a check for $5.

A fine donation to the fund came from New London, Ct., with the following letter: "The enlisted men of the School, Mechanical Engineering Department in the Submarine Base, New London, Ct., wish to add a little contribution to the Christmas Basket Fund. You will please find a money order for $31.50, which you will please add to your contribution. We wish you the utmost success in your good work, and a Merry Christmas to all the children of Boston."

A Roxbury girl sent the following plea for a Christmas basket:

"I am just writing you to ask you if you please will not forget me if possible and send me a Christmas basket. I am a little girl fourteen years old. My father has been dead since I was born, and my mother goes out to work every day. Hoping you will try and not forget me if possible, I remain——"

This appeal came from an East Boston woman:

"I am asking you to help me, as I have to support four children. My husband died last year and I have to work all day long to keep the rent paid up, and you see I have no money to spend buying much to make us happy at Christmas."

An appeal came from a North End girl:

"I am a girl of fifteen years old and am writing to you, as you are the only one that can help us. We are eight children and I am the oldest. My father suffers from varicose veins and is not able to work. I am the only support of the family, making $10 a week. The landlord wanted $15 a month. We are paying $10 a month. We could not pay it and we are living in one of the poorest houses in the North End. It is back in an alley.

"You are the only one that can lighten this house on Christmas day. I wish some one could see it and know what I am trying to tell you for I cannot express my feelings with this pen. The oldest child is fifteen (myself) and the youngest eighteen months. My father has been operated on twice at the Boston Dispensary. Thanking you very, very much, I remain."

APPEALS FROM ROXBURY.

A Roxbury woman writes for Christmas basket:

"I am very sorry to have to ask you this favor, but my son was in the service and has been out of employment nearly three months. I have two more children to support and I go out two or three days a week washing and scrubbing."

A Roxbury widow with four children wrote:

"Just a few lines asking for a little help from you. I am a poor widow with four children. The father will be dead five years the day after this Christmas. I am a sick woman, and it is hard to get along. I hope you won't forget us Christmas. If you do, we will have no dinner for Christmas."

Pleads Cause of Poor Kiddies at Xmas

"Editor Boston American:

"At the merry Christmas season when happy fathers and mothers and loving friends pour out the treasure of their lives and make glad the hearts of the little ones in their homes there is always the consciousness of woe, white faces staring with wide, wondering eyes at the throng of busy shoppers burdened with bundles that carry joy to those more comfortable and warm than themselves.

"Because these little people are in no way to blame for their poverty and need; because these little heads may never understand the reason of their deprivation, their hunger and their longing; because the bitterness of their pain poisons every cup of happiness we press to our own lips; because they are our little brothers and sisters whose lives are linked with ours in a divine relationship we may not deny, and because we believe the whole world is blessed by the spirit of love, which is the keynote of Christmas joy, we gladly join you in this service for them that the song of the angels may reach the ears of those whose lives seem very far from Heaven.

"Faithfully yours,

"MRS. MINNIE M. SOULE"

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little, sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

NEW ENGLAND CHAMPIONS RULE FAVORITES IN BIG GAME

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 11.—Haverhill High and Duval High battled here on the gridiron today in a game that was to decide the schoolboy football championship of the East. The heavy Haverhill team was school champion of New England. The Duval eleven clinched the title for Florida and Georgia. Neither team has been defeated, and by the same token neither expected to be this afternoon.

Haverhill went into the game a slight favorite, principally because of an excess weight. Though the backfields were about the same, the line of the Northerners outweighed the Floridans greatly.

The game looked like a really fine contest as both teams had a wide variety of plays and evidently knew just what to do with them. Two of the greatest young quarterbacks in the land were directing the rival machines, and everything was set for a thrilling struggle.

Great Crowd on Hand to Watch Joust

Never before in the history of Jacksonville has a football game excited such general interest as the clash between Haverhill and Duval. The greatest crowd that ever witnessed a football contest here was on hand.

Haverhill created a splendid impression in Florida as sportsmen and gentlemen, and the sturdy and husky young visiting players gave every evidence of having justly earned their laurels, which they wear so becomingly.

Apart from the record-breaking journey from Massachusetts to Florida, taken by Haverhill, the contest will have another novel feature in that neither team has been scouted by a representative of the other. It is not believed that any one person has seen both Duval and Haverhill participate in any football game this year.

Consequently any opinion as to relative merits of the teams is merely speculation. Certain it is, however, that the partisans of each team—and Haverhill has as adherents among the local population and visitors every mother's son and daughter who was born or attended school north of Mason and Dixon line—loudly claimed victory for their favorites.

The coaches and players themselves in each camp had an air of confidence and made no predictions. They had the greatest respect for their opponents' reputed ability. It was expected to be a close, hard fought game. There was the usual fair Florida weather and sunshine.

Haverhill had a final workout of an hour and a half at Southside Park. The boys have fully recovered from effects of travel and are in great shape, except Left End Doucette, who was slightly hurt in practice Thursday. They motored to Orange Grove, picked oranges from trees, visited Pablo Beach riding for miles on the hundred-yard wide natural beach speedway. Duval was fit and ready after tuning up at Southside in the afternoon.

Downes also donned his uniform for the last time today. "Hob" has been the mainstay of the team all year when it came to kicking. "Bob's" punts have averaged from 45 to 60 yards in every game. He has done most of the forward passing for the team.

Arthur Parisien, who is expected by many to be elected next year's captain, has been scouted by Bacon to Haverhill today. He is the fastest man on the team and showed his coolness in the Newton game when he calmly placed the ball on the ground and kicked the goal, giving his team the lead of one point in the game for the championship of New England. He is a great general.

Haverhill Has Won Thirteen Contests

The greatest football team that ever represented Haverhill High has gone through thirteen games without meeting their match. The best teams facing Haverhill were Manchester, N. H., and Newton. In defeating Newton, Haverhill was acknowledged the champion schoolboy team of New England.

Starting with Lewiston, the Brown and Gold eleven has scored an average of 37 points a game. Haverhill defeated St. John's Prep by the largest score since the two schools have met. They did the same thing with Lawrence and not a team of championship calibre around Boston could solve the attack of the Haverhill team.

The team has kept mostly to straight football in all games, only using forwards. The team resorted to open plays in the Manchester and Newton games, which were the hardest for the Haverhill giants.

Captain Arthur Legacy played his last game of football for his team. He is the highest point scorer for the team, having made 23 touchdowns for a total of 138 points.

WILLIAMS SCHEDULES GAME WITH COLUMBIA

Williamstown, Dec. 11.—The Williamstown football schedule for 1921 shows that Columbia will be played at New York on November 5. A new opponents to be faced is Bowdoin. Rensselaer and Trinity will not be played next year. The Amherst game will be staged the week before the Wesleyan clash instead of closing the season, as has been the case in past years.

The schedule follows: October 1, Hamilton at Clinton; October 8, Bowdoin at Williamstown; October 22, Columbia at New York; November 5, Union at Williamstown; November 12, Amherst at Williamstown; November 19, Wesleyan at Middletown.

Baseball "Bug" Gets Stagemen's Goats

A baseball "bug" is an awful "nut," especially at this season of the year. One of them nearly wrecked the Park Square Theatre the other day and to date neither Manager Wright nor Press Agent Joe Di Pesa has recovered their "goats."

Here's how it all happened. Someone called the theatre on the phone and wanted a couple of seats reserved for the opening performance of Grant Mitchell at Braves Field. Then the fun started. An outdoor show in December. Never heard of such a thing.

Then the fan let out. Grant is the owner of the Braves and he has recently named Fred Mitchell as manager—Grant—Mitchell—get it? Messrs. Wright and Di Pesa are both good baseball fans, but—

What a Man Eats.

Brocco, who eats spaghetti and maccaroni, and drinks red wine with his meals, is the marvel of physical endurance and speed at the six-day race at Madison Square Garden.

From this one might gather that the diet of the wonderful little Italian bicycle rider is the proper thing for an athlete.

However, Brocco's partner, Coburn, an American, is a meat eater.

Between them they are maintaining the killing pace that is leaving other spaghetti and maccaroni eaters and men who follow a meat diet far behind.

Freddy Welsh, former lightweight champion of the world, and Kid Parker of Denver, a good fighter in his day, were once vegetarians. Welsh, at least, while living on vegetables, could fight as well as when he ate meat.

Alone and unaided, the meat-eating English army hasn't whipped a white man in over a hundred years, but without outside assistance, colonial or otherwise, the carniverous American soldiers have never been beaten.

Thus it appears that it doesn't make a great deal of difference what a man eats as long as he eats wisely.

The trouble with many men and nations nowadays is that they are not getting enough to eat.

ENGLISH CHAMP KAYOED AGAIN

Moran Uppercuts Beckett in 2d and Butterflies Flutter, as They Remark

London, Dec. 11.—Frank Moran of Pittsburgh knocked out Joe Beckett, English heavyweight champion, in the second round of their bout in Albert Hall here.

In the first round Moran tried a left lead, but was caught with a right to the jaw. Moran then led with his right and clinched. He was warned by the referee.

Beckett got in some good work in the second, and again Moran closed in, trying short-arm jabs, which failed to land. Moran got in a hard smash, but Beckett quickly retaliated with a powerful right to the jaw.

Beckett was floored with an uppercut during infighting and was counted out. The end of the bout came very suddenly.

Up to a few seconds before he was counted out Beckett had landed more blows than the American, who seemed slower. Moran was also warned for clinching in the second.

PITT WANTS TO MEET SYRACUSE ON TRACK

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Syracuse University was today closing a two-year contract by the University of Pittsburgh for track meets here Spring and in 1922, the first to be held in Syracuse and the second on the Pitt field.

Pitt asks that the meet here be scheduled for May 5. The Orange has, however, practically completed negotiations for a meet on that date and unless the Panther athletes become on another date, the two teams will not oppose each other this year.

HOPPE AND HOREMANS FAIL TO AGREE ON TERMS

Another serious hitch has occurred in the negotiations for a world's championship balkine billiard match between Willie Hoppe and Edouard Horemans. Apother conference was held between the representatives of the players and various points were discussed at length. The session ended with nothing of a definite purpose accomplished.

COLGATE ELEVEN ON PRINCETON SCHEDULE

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 11.—Princeton's football schedule for the 1921 season, as officially announced here, shows Colgate back on the card, and a return match with the Navy at Annapolis, in addition to the first game in the sectional series with Chicago, which will be played in Tigertown. University of Virginia gets the October 29 date.

Yale Captains Form Partnership

Lawrence, Dec. 11.—"Tim" Callahan, captain of the Yale varsity eleven for the past two years, is visiting his mother in this city, preparatory to his sailing for England where he will enter Oxford University as a student of Balliol Colleges. He expects to finish there in July. After touring northern Africa and Europe he will go to Chicago to locate permanently. The former captain will enter business with G. R. (Cupid) Black, a former team-mate and captain of the 1916 Yale team.

NAVY RENEWS CONTRACT WITH COACH FOLWELL

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11.—The Naval Academy Athletic Association has renewed its contract with Bob Folwell as head coach of the Naval Academy football team. It is extended over two or three years at Folwell's option.

His work as head coach at the academy has been eminently satisfactory and he was offered a renewal prior to the game against the military academy eleven in New York without reference to whether the navy team won or lost that contest.

CUBS ACQUIRE MAISEL FROM PORTLAND CLUB

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Announcement of the purchase of George Maisel, an outfielder, from the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League, was made today by officials of the Chicago Cubs. Cash and two players yet to be named were given for the player.

Maisel is a brother of Fritz Maisel, former Yankee third baseman. He achieved a batting average of .320 in 158 games last season.

SYRACUSE SCHEDULES GAME WITH OHIO ELEVEN

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Syracuse University added one more game to its 1921 football chart today, closing with Ohio University to appear here on October 1. Ohio is coached by "Wild Bill" Fisterwald, a former Orange star. It marks opening of athletic relations with the Athens institution.

McCARTHY AFTER TITLE CHANCE

Roxbury Boxer to Challenge Big Fellows if He Defeats Clay Turner Tonight

By JACK CONWAY.

Pat McCarthy, Roxbury's sturdy heavyweight, has his plans all set for securing a bout with the winner of the tussle between Captain Bob Repas and Harry Greb which will be staged in this city under the direction of the Faneuil A. C., on December 21, provided there is a "yes" vote on the boxing referendum at the election next Tuesday.

McCarthy has shown a lot of ring class lately. He recently thumped his way to an impressive victory over Dan Dowd of South Boston and is now out to land a setback to Clay Turner of New York, whom he meets in a ten-round contest at the Commonwealth A. A. tonight.

It can be said that McCarthy picked a setup when he agreed to meet Turner. The latter is rated as one of the best of our noble lights heavyweights. He has fought Harry Greb, Battling Levinsky and the rest of the big fellows and may be relied upon to make things mighty interesting for Roxbury Pat.

Matchmaker Jackie Williams has arranged the usual bang-up preliminary card.

Shaver O'Brien Aspires for Go With Siegal

Shaver O'Brien sees his ten-round bout with Billy Carney at the Carlyle Club next Monday night will lead to a match with Nate Siegal. It is apparent the South Boston boy is confident he will score a victory over the Bedford warrior.

O'Brien has been training for the past week and is in splendid condition. If he wins over Carney, he will probably not find it difficult getting a match with Siegal. There are a lot of fans who believe Cy Goodwin's protege can trounce the New Bedford welterweight boss.

Supervised Boxing Gets Support of Public

Boston will be the scene of many important meetings if this city votes to accept the provisions of the act which provides for a boxing commission in the Department of Public Safety. This question will go before the voters at the city election next Tuesday. Of the twenty-one cities and towns which voted on the referendum last Tuesday, eighteen communities went "yes" by comfortable majorities. The women voters have given their support to boxing under proper supervision.

The boxing bill is the result of the careful planning of those persons who directed the boxing at the K. of C., Y. M. C. A., army and navy tournaments during the war. They realize that the public is for boxing when the ring sport is conducted in a clean, wholesome manner with a regulating body.

OLYMPIC STAR FOR GREEN HOCKEY COACH

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 11.—Edward Fitzgerald, a member of the hockey team that represented the United States at the Olympic games, is likely to be the Dartmouth hockey coach this Fall. Although the athletic council has made no official announcement, it is known their negotiations with Fitzgerald have been under way for some time. Fitzgerald has played with the championship St. Paul A. C. team of Minnesota.

BALDBRIDGE TO COACH CREIGHTON ELEVEN

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 11.—Malcolm Baldridge of Omaha, Yale tackle in 1915 and 1916, was named football coach for Creighton University for the 1921 season. He served as a line coach at the University of Nebraska the past season.

Southern League Meeting

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 11.—John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association, has issued a call for the annual winter meeting of the association to be held here December 24.

Twenty Best Heavies Hard Test for Fans

Tad, greatest of the cartoonists and one of the foremost flatic authorities in the country, was requested to submit to us a list of his twenty best heavyweights.

"All right," said Tad, promptly "I'll give it to you in five minutes. That's the easiest question anybody has given me in a long time."

He seized a bit of yellow note paper, hastily scribbled three names, and passed. Then he tore up the paper and began on another sheet.

Several hours he was still struggling, and just as everybody was about to give up hope he completed his list.

He has bracketed in No. 1 position Jack Dempsey and Jack Johnson.

"I couldn't split 'em out," he explained. "Either Dempsey or Johnson is the best heavyweight that ever lived, but I can't just decide."

Tad's list follows:

1, Dempsey; Johnson; 2, Jackson; 3, Jeffries; 4, Corbett; 5, Sullivan; 6 (Langford); 7, Fitz-Immons; 8, McCoy; 9, Miske; 10 (Chynski); 11 Joe Goddard; 12, Peter Maher; 13, Jess Willard; 14, Charley Mitchell; 15 Fulton; 16, Carpentier; 17, Brennan; 18, McFan; 19, Luther McCarthy; 20, Denver Ed Martin.

Hugh McGinley gives Gus Ruhlin a higher rating than the Akron Giant has yet received from any of Wetherby's other blue pinch.

Here is his list in full:

1, Dempsey; 2, Fitzsimmons; 3, Sullivan; 4, Jackson; 5, Jeffries; 6, Corbett; 7, Jack Johnson; 8, Peter Maher; 9, Ruhlin; 10, Sam Langford; 11, Joe Choynski; 12, Luther McCarthy; 13, Charley Mitchell; 14, Jess Willard; 15, Bill McCoy; 16, Sam McVey; 17, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien; 18, Joe Jeannette; 19, Tommy Burns; 20, Tom Sharkey.

This Chap Includes Walcott in List

From R. Somers comes a list which includes a couple of names new to the selection of experts. He includes Joe Walcott, who was not a heavyweight, although he whipped heavyweights and Young Peter.

Here is Somers' list:

1, Fitzsimmons; 2, Corbett; 3, Jeffries; 4, Sullivan; 5, Peter Jackson; 6, Choynski; 7, Jack Dempsey; 8, Johnson; 9, Ruhlin; 10, Ruhlin; 11, Sharkey; 12, Willard; 13, Walcott; 14, McCoy; 15, Langford; 16, Maher; 17, Neal; 18, Willis; 19, Fulton; 20, Dillon.

"My time" presents a list ruling Bill Herman 20th.

Here's the list:

1, Jeffries; 2, Sullivan; 3, Fitzsimmons; 4, Corbett; 5, Johnson; 6, Dempsey; 7, Jackson; 8, Choynski; 9, Peter Maher; 10, Sharkey; 11, Ruhlin; 12, Jeannette; 13, Willis; 14, Jess Willard; 15, Georges Carpentier; 16, Miske; 17, Mitchell; 18, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien; 19, Tommy Burns; 20, Brennan.

1, Jack Dempsey; 2, Jack Johnson; 3, Fitzsimmons; 4, Jackson; 5, Jeffries; 6, Sullivan; 7, Willard; 8, Corbett; 9, Sullivan; 10, Langford; 11, Sharkey; 12, Carpentier; 13, Fulton; 14, Choynski; 15, Brennan; 16, McVey; 17, Lewinsky; 18, Burns; 19, Maher; 20, Luther McCarthy.

Preddy Welsh Finds It a Tough Job

Preddy Welsh, the former lightweight champion, has also joined the list of pickers. He declined to name them, or sort 'em, and this is what we found.

Sullivan, Ruhlin, Moore, Mitchell, Sharkey, Corbett, Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Johnson, McCoy, Maher, Choynski, Willard, McCarthy, Carpentier, Dempsey.

Of course, Preddy did not mean to rate Dempsey last. He simply said he couldn't place 'em according to their standing in history, and let it go at that.

GEORGIA ADDED TO HARVARD SCHEDULE

The University of Georgia has been given a place on the 1921 football schedule of Harvard University. The Crimson will meet Georgia at Cambridge, October 15, the week following the game with Indiana University.

Harvard is still waiting to hear from Centre College as to the exact date desired by the Southerners.

FITTON A. C. MIDGETS TO BATTLE INDIANS

The Fitton A. C. Midgets and the Indian Midgets clash at Wood Island Park tomorrow afternoon. The Fittons have won seven out of eight games this season, and as this is their last contest, it promises to be one of the best.

MAGNATES BEGIN TO GET BUSY

Baseball Clans Stirred Up by Shifting of A. L. Meeting to Chicago

New York, Dec. 11.—Dissatisfaction has broken out already among the baseball magnates who are gathering here for the big baseball meetings next week. The sudden shifting of the American League meeting from New York to Chicago has aroused a flock of the club owners, who are preparing to get Judge Landis to change things over when he gets on the scene today.

Ebbetts of the Johnson, and he has plenty, are inclined to believe this a move of the well-known sort, who ignore that he will have more sway in Chicago, where some of the magnates may not be able to be later coming in New York for the National League meeting Tuesday.

According to reports, however, from Chicago, the change was caused by Judge Landis, who will be obliged to be in court in Chicago Monday, and to that reason had Johnson shift the place of meeting.

The present plans now call for the opening of the minors Monday at the hotel here the meeting of the National League commencing Tuesday at the Waldorf, and the gathering of the American League Friday at the Congress Hotel, Chicago.

After that a joint meeting of the leagues, to which the committee of the minor leagues will be also called, is booked by Chairman Landis of the National Commission. This meeting will really be the important one, and much of the success of baseball in 1921 will hinge on the action taken.

Plans to eliminate gambling from the 1921 parks, to prevent as far as possible the squabbling of the magnates that has been the same great bane of the past, and other reformatory and necessary measures will be carried out.

AND yet Jennie dared refuse or avoid some of their gratitude and some of their affection. To have refused would have created surprise, would have required explanation—and explanation, might lead somehow to exposure. There was nothing for it but to accept the situation.

And after all, there was this much that Slim could not take away from her: she had acted in the full belief that the two o'clock tryst in the library between Slim and Gloria had been bona fide on both sides—and if she had not originated this plan and carried it out, the Harrisons and Kenneth would not now be free of an unfortunate relationship. So much was real and unattractable—and therefore, since everything had grown out of this, was this not in consequence almost everything? . . .

She thought frequently of Kenneth. Was he, out there in the solitude of the West where he had gone to conceal his hurt, recovering from his heart-break and disillusionment? She hoped so, for he was deserving of a far finer girl than Gloria—of the very finest girl! She wondered what was happening to him, and within him, away out there, all alone. . . .

As the June days passed, her humiliation lost its first keen edge, and—she accepted matters as they were with a growing composure. The days were much alike, given over to bathing, going to teas, motoring about, or merely quiet chats with Mrs. Harrison; and of evenings there was frequent dancing in neighboring houses. With this pleasant Summer routine she developed rapidly.

Her unchanging appearance of modesty made Mrs. Harrison believe her unpopular, so the generous older woman never withheld her praise. One afternoon when Jennie had been at Silver Bluffs over a month, and she and Mrs. Harrison were standing upon the piazza gazing out at the blazing Sound, Mrs. Harrison impulsively crossed to Jennie and kissed her.

"What's the matter?" asked Jennie.

"I couldn't help it—I just got to looking at you."

"Looking at me?"

"Yes. And I was saying to myself," the low-pitched voice went on, "She was beautiful when she first came to us, but she is growing more beautiful every day!' And that is true, my dear."

Jennie grew warm with an upcush of exultant happiness. This was a wonderful world she had come into—a wonderful world indeed! And, just then, her nearing place in this world seemed as glorious as the sunset that was besparkling the waters—only for her the glory of the beauty of sunrise, and the dazzling brilliance of full day was yet to come.

But even while they stood there, Jennie's other world reached out to her a beckoning hand.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Old World and the New.

THE beckoning hand took the form of a telegram carried out to her by a maid. The message bore the signature of the lawyers who managed her affairs, and its ten words, to any other eyes than Jennie's, would have meant nothing more than that her lawyers required her presence that evening upon a matter of immediate business. But the telegram was a code prearranged for use, in case of extreme necessity. To Jennie the startling telegram meant that Uncle George wished to see her without delay.

She showed the message to Mrs. Harrison, and the hostess later she was in the sitting room of a suite in that great hotel-city, the Biltmore, in whose multitudinous bustle persons could come and go unnoticed, and she was shaking the hand of Uncle George.

"You are looking great, Jennie!" exclaimed the old man. "You sure are looking the real goods—better even than I ever thought you would!"

Despite his words of admiration and approval, there was a soberness in his wrinkled face that would have excited Jennie's alarm even had the telegram not already done so.

"What's the matter, Uncle George?" she demanded.

"It's bad news, my dear"—patting her hand—"but take it easy. It's what comes to us all, and I guess some day it'll be my turn."

"Is it—something—about dad?" she breathed.

He shook his head. "It's about your Aunt Mary. She died last night."

"Aunt Mary—dead!" Jennie stood dazed; never before had death touched her closely.

"Funeral's tomorrow morning at eleven. Black Jerry asked me to see you and tell you. He was afraid you might learn of it some other way, and he was afraid you might be impulsive and forget everything else and come rushing down to the funeral where there may be a bunch of people. That's why Jerry asked me to see you; that's what Jerry gave strict orders about—you are not to come to the funeral."

"Aunt Mary—dead!" she repeated.

"You'll do like Jerry said and not come to the funeral!" the old man insisted.

"I'll not come—if dad says so," she returned.

But back at Silver Bluffs she kept to herself, and most of that night she lay awake. Her mind went back and went over all the acts of unselfish kindness, of constant thoughtfulness, of her patient Aunt Mary who had mothered her through nigh a dozen years—and she could see the white, worn face, the frail figure, now lying rigid in eternal silence in the little sitting room above the Pekin. She recalled her own impatience, her selfishness, the advantage she so often had taken of her none-too clever aunt. Hot tears trickled down her cheeks; her soul theobbed with a quivering pain that was a sense of loss, of yearning, that was the call of blood to blood. And so it was during most of the night.

The next morning she had made a decision. She was going to slip back for a glimpse of her own people. She had to!—no matter what happened. And her plan for securing this glimpse was based upon her remembrance that, however largely attended a funeral in her neighborhood might be, usually only a single carriage followed the hearse on the far and expansive journey to the outskirts of Brooklyn where are colonized the city's dead.

She dressed herself in a dark, unpretentious suit, and told Mrs. Harrison that she was obliged to go into New York for a further conference with her lawyers. At half-past ten, in a big department store, she was buying the thickest mourning veil, and a few minutes later, the veil on and lowered, at another doorway from the one at which she had entered, she thrust a taxi and stepped in. The car stopped as ordered a block away from, but in full sight of, the Pekin; and the curtains drawn, Jennie sat peering at the front of her old home. Her heart beat wildly; she was back once more among her old folk, in her old country. It all seemed so close to her—yet so far, far away!

She Saw the Coffin

Jennie had calculated time and procedure almost exactly. Her taxi had been waiting at the curb only a few minutes when she saw solemn, straggling little groups come out of the doorway—and then she saw the coffin borne out and placed in the motor-hearse—and then she saw her father come—and end, fusing the company of Uncle George, enter a solitary taxicab. Pursuant to her instructions, the car followed this cortege of a hearse and a single carriage at a block's distance, crossed through East side streets—across the high-swung Queensborough Bridge—and then at fifty miles an hour (for New York motor-hearses must earn their keep and so have no time to waste) over Long Island macadam. Arrived at the graveyard and the open grave, the motor-hearse quickly discharged its black freight and then drove away on its next errand of expressage.

Jennie, glancing about, saw a score or more of little groups scattered among the slabs of marble. She had the sense that here the burying of the dead was just a great businesss—many funerals to be disposed of per hour; that the graveyard was just a great freightage receiving office, where human beings were simply shipped from the present to whatever points might lie beyond.

With so much routine business going on, only the dead's work attention was given to this last scene in the mortal drama of Mary Graham, spinster. As soon as Jennie was certain that no one was beside her aunt's grave except a swiftly-working stage crew and her father, she slipped from her taxi to the edge of the grave. She saw her father glance at her, and she was quite certain he recognized her despite the thick shade of the heavy veil. But he gave no sign, and turned back to the grave. Thus, silent, side by side, they stood watching the coffin, with clay pour from deft shovels down upon the dead: Black Jerry, his derby pulled down tightly, his square face set and motionless—and Jennie, behind her veil, crying all the while; and thus they remained, apart, unspeaking, until the workmen had slapped the sods into shapely mound, and had swung along to their next task.

Black Jerry turned abruptly away toward his taxicab. Silently Jennie slipped a hand through his arm, and walked beside him. Even then he gave no sign of recognizing her presence. Arrived at her taxi, she whispered, "You're coming with me." He hesitated, then, settling with the chauffeur, into his own taxi, he stepped into Jennie's car. Her fingers clutched his big hand tightly and she drew up her heavy veil; but despite the privacy he sat gazing straight ahead, his heavy jaw clenched, his eyes hard-ip winking. Jennie was suddenly bereft of the power to open conversation; the old habit of childhood returned to her, not to speak to her reticent father until he had first spoken.

OH, how sad are their faces, how sorrowful are their eyes as they pause to read the heartrending inscription on the headstone that marks the last resting place of a departed lover. And though they never know him, each one can conjure up his likeness, and as for the saucy maid that jilted him and led him to an early grave, oh, what words are severe enough for the heartless jade. For they know they would never do such a thing. Oh never! They feel sure of it as they walk out of the old-fashioned churchyard, carrying with them the image of the young man who so nobly proved wrong the old saw that man can never die of love.

"IS he alive?"

Valerie Cosby breathed the question timidly, staggering back against a slim birch as she spoke.

Evvy Mason stared up at her incredulously, still wearing that strange look of triumph I had glimpsed on her face when we came upon her there at the river's brink with Sheldon's motionless figure gathered in her arms and held against her breast.

"Anne, come lay your hand on his heart," said Evvy, in a voice that had the hush of air before a storm.

These were the first words she had spoken to me since the day she flung Neal's ring at him and hurled out at Jim and me her hatred and scorn.

Queerly enough her words held the ring of possessiveness. It was as if she had said:

"This is my boy. I do not know if he lives or not. I hardly care. He is my boy. I know this. And it is enough."

"I can't feel it beat," I whispered as if in the presence of death.

"Give me a mirror!"

Evvy flung out the command tonelessly. And Val staggered down to us, as she came fumbling to draw a little vanity case of blue enamel from a bag of rich brocade.

"Take it, Ann. Hold it to his lips," Evvy ordered.

I held the glass to Sheldon's lips and brought it away clear—unmisted. Evvy bowed her head for a moment.

"But I heard him speak," I said.

"Yes, you heard him speak. He knew me. He told me—what I will never forget," said Evvy. She spoke to me. But now I knew that she spoke through me to Val.

"What did he tell you?" cried Val. "What did he tell you? We weren't coming to see you. It was to spend the day with Anne. She had asked me to Dreamweld. You had asked me, hadn't you, Anne? Tell her so!"

Setting Val Right

"I had asked you," I said, repeating her formula.

Evvy looked up at us with scorn in her eyes. She ignored the words Val had cried out for me to repeat.

"Do you think it is too late, Anne, to make up to Jim for—everything?" she asked strangely. "Do you think what he told me now is the last message he will ever have for me?"

"We must get doctors!" I cried. I'll run to your place and 'phone for them. There will be someone at the inn. And an ambulance. We must have that. I'll run."

"Wait!" Evvy cried. "Help me make him—comfortable."

I helped her lay his head on the pillow she made of her tan camel's-hair coat. And as we worked to make the still form "comfortable" I noticed with amazement that Sheldon's stormy, insolent face was strangely peaceful, and that he smiled.

When we had laid Sheldon on the ground Evvy knelt by him for a moment. Then she rose and stood facing Val. Never have I seen a greater contrast than those two women offered.

Evvy stood slim and virginal in a dress of soft blue which matched her eyes. On her head was a tam-o'-shanter of the same color. Though her face was pale, it shone with a light I'd never seen on it before. Her figure was little, insignificant even in its lithe boyishness. But her face had power. Something had happened in the minutes she was alone with Sheldon Blake. Something had gone from his voice into her soul.

It had changed Evvy Mason. That I felt. But what the change was I could not guess. Nor could I for the moment imagine what words Sheldon Blake might speak to her in two or three brief minutes that could make me feel awe and respect for this girl I always had disliked.

A Changed Girl

Val cowered away from the blue ice of Evvy's glance. Val, the cool and indolent; Val, the perfectly groomed and creamy, was crimson now—dishevelled, bruised and battered by the accident which had taken Sheldon's life and yet left him unmarred and beautiful.

There was mud and dirt caked on Val's cheek where an ugly gash still sent a red trickle down the plaster of soil. One sleeve was torn from her suave black satin dress and her hat had fallen from her head, leaving her smooth black hair in a gypsyish tangle such as I had never known it could suggest. Her lips were a bluish-purple. She looked hideous, a caricature of the perfectly coiffed, smooth mask I had always seen her wear.

Looking at her like this, I suddenly visioned puffy, white hands fearlessly beating out the flames that threatened Lucy Willoughby's face. Then I saw that from her torn sleeve the arm and hand dangled helpless. But it was her eyes that drew me, for they were fixed on Evvy Mason with sheer terror widening their narrow inscrutability to pools of dark horror.

Val said nothing. But I seemed to hear her plead with Evvy:

"What are you going to do with me?"

Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

ALAS, alas, my Daughter, how shall a WOMAN satisfy the demands, and likewise fulfill the ideals and please the hearts of men?

For, behold, from the pulpits the High Priests have declared that marriage is woman's sublimest vocation.

Yet, if a damsel declareth openly, "I yearn to marry!" she is called bold and unwomanly"; and her name, amongst bachelors, is "Man-trap."

But if she declareth openly, "I scorn to marry, and desire only single blessedness!" she is called "unnatural"; and her name, amongst bachelors, is "Bluffer."

If she seeketh to capture an husband, and adorneth herself to charm the eyes of man: if she tinteth the cheek and shorteneth the skirt, she is called "Vamp," and "Siren," and "Doll," and Scatterbrain."

But if she weareth comfortable garments, and cotton hose; if she croppeth her hair, and scorneth coquetry and rice powder, she is called "Poor thing!" and "Blighted Being," and "Man-Hater," and "Freak." And the titters of the scornful can be heard at her approach.

If she clingeth and blusheth, and demandeth that a man shall waft upon her, and support her, she is called "Mollusc" and "Parasite"; and from the platform of the women's clubs she is denounced as "mid-Victorian."

But if she earneth her own living, and packeth her own trunks, and chooseth her own politics and runneth her own motor car, she is called "Advanced!" and "unfeminine"; and in the secret meetings of the men's clubs she is denounced as "the modern menace."

If a matron waxeth fat, lo, it is "her own fault," and she is a "joke." But if she dieteth, and bauteth, and massageth to keep her waistline, she is "a vain old fool."

If she permitteth her hair to turn gray, she is "passee."

But if she turneth its course to "red," she is "deceitful."

If a wife declareth herself perfectly content with her husband, behold among the worldly she is shrugged at, and called "easily pleased."

But if she avoweth herself dissatisfied with matrimony and yearneth for a "soul-companion," she is written down in the black books of the reformers, and called "restless" among scenario writers.

If a woman talketh and chattereth, she blasteth the ears of men.

If she remaineth silent, she arouseth their suspicions.

If she laugheth and displayeth a sense of humor, she frighteneth men.

If she weepeth, she wearieth them.

If she believeth all that a man telleth her, she is "soft" and a "fool."

If she believeth nothing he telleth her, she is "hard" and a "cynic."

Verily, verily, it is no DISGRACE to be a woman!

But, alas, it is exceeding uncomfortable!

Selah.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

The Engaged Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am engaged to a young lady, and would like to know whether it is proper for a young man who works in her office and knows that she is engaged, to offer her small attentions, such as candy, etc.

Also, what do you think of this same young man offering this young lady jewelry?

I am not inclined to be narrow minded, but as I am very much in love with my sweetheart, I feel that it is not right for this other chap to be intruding.

ENGAGED.

THE candy might be offered in all innocence, but there's no particular reason why you shouldn't be left to make the floral and saccharine offerings. The gift of jewelry is inexcusable.

A Mercenary Wooer

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I went out with a young man for three months. During that time he tried to find out whether I have money. Although I have fifteen hundred dollars, I did not tell him, and thinking I have none he stopped calling.

Now I love him very much. Do you think it is worth while to let him know, he then he would come come back to me?

L. F.

SURELY you don't want to have a man marry you for your money. If he did not care enough for you to maintain his interest on a basis of congeniality, you can't buy happiness even if you can "buy" him back. You wouldn't respect him or yourself if you were to try to get him back in this way.

CHAPTER XVI.—Continued

SHE got up impulsively, spilling some of the contents of the pan. A subtle change had come over her, and under the gallantly drooping feathers of her hat he caught her eye—the human eye that so marvellously reflects the phases of the human soul: the eye which so short a time before, hardily and brazenly had flashed forth its invitation, now actually shone with fellowship and sympathy. And for a moment this look was more startling, more appalling than the other; he shrank from it, resented it even more. Was it true that they had something in common? And if so, was it sin or sorrow, or both?

"I might have known," she said, staring at him. In spite of his gestures of dismay he saw that she was going over the events of the evening from her new point of view.

"I might have known, when we were sitting there in Havrod's, that you were up against it, too, but I couldn't think of anything but the way I was fixed. This agent's been here twice this week for the rent, and I was kind of desperate for a square meal."

Hodder took the dustpan from her hand, and flung its contents into the fireplace.

"Then we are both fortunate," he said, "to have met each other."

"I don't see where you come in," she told him.

He turned and smiled at her.

"Do you remember when I was here that evening about two months ago I said I should like to be your friend? Well, I meant it. And I have often hoped, since then, that some circumstance might bring us together again. You seemed to think that no friendship was possible between us, but I have tried to make myself believe that you said so because you didn't know me."

"Honest to God" she asked. "Is that on the level?"

"I only ask an opportunity to prove it," he replied, striving to speak naturally. He stooped and held the dustpan on the hearth. "There! Now let's sit down."

She sank on the sofa, her breast rising and falling, her gaze dumbly fixed on him, as one under hypnosis. He took the rocker.

"I have wanted to tell you how grateful Mrs. Garvin—the boy's mother — was for the roses you brought. She doesn't know who sent them, but I intend to tell her, and she will thank you herself. She is living out in the country. And the boy—You would scarcely recognize him."

"I couldn't play the piano for a week after—that thing happened." She glanced at the space where the instrument had stood.

"You taught yourself to play?" he asked.

"I had music lessons."

"Music lessons!"

"Not here—before I left home—up the State, in a little country town—Madison. It seems like a long time ago, but it's only seven years in September. Mother and father wanted all of us children to know a little more than they did, and I guess they pinched a good deal to give us a chance. I went a year to the high school, and then I was all for coming to the city—I couldn't stand Madison, there wasn't anything going on. Mother was against it—said I was too good looking to leave home. I wish I never had. You wouldn't believe I was good looking once, would you?"

She spoke dispassionately, not seeming to expect assent, but Hodder glanced involuntarily at her wonderful crown of hair. She had taken off her hat. He was thinking of the typical crime of American parents,—and suddenly it struck him that her speech had changed, that she had dropped the suggestive slang of the surroundings in which she now lived.

I FELL WISE.

"I was a fool to come, but I couldn't see it then. All I could think of was to get away to a place where something was happening. I wanted to get into Ferguson's—everybody in Madison knew about Ferguson's, what a grand store it was—once I couldn't. And after a while I got a place at the embroidery counter at Fratts. That's a department store, too, you know. It looked fine, but it wasn't long before I fell wise to a few things." (She relapsed into slang occasionally.) "Have you ever tried to stand on your feet for nine hours, where you couldn't sit down for a minute? Say, when Florry Kinsley and me—she was the girl I roomed with— would get home at night, often we'd just lie down and laugh and cry, we were so tired, and our feet hurt so. We were too used up sometimes to get up and cook supper on the little stove we had. And sitting around a back bedroom all evening was worse than Madison. We'd go out, tried as we were, and walk the streets."

He nodded, impressed by the fact that she did not seem to be annealed to his sympathy. Nor, indeed, did she appear—in thus picking up the threads of her past—to be consciously accounting for her present. She recognized no causation there.

"Say, did you ever get to a place where you just had to have something happen? When you couldn't stand it another day? Lonely night after night, when you went out on the streets and saw everybody on the way to a good time but you? We used to look in the newspapers for notices of the big balls, and we'd take the cars to the West End and stand outside and watch the watching the carriages driving up and the people coming in. And the music with the windows. We got to know a good many of the waltzes by sight. There was Mrs. Larrabee—" a certain awe crept into her voice—"and Miss Fergus—she's sweet—and a lot more. Some of the girls used to copy their clothes and hats, but Florry and me tried to live honest. It was funny," she added irrelevantly, "but the more worn out we were at night, the more we'd want a little excitement, and we used to go to the dancehalls and keep going until we were nearly ready to drop."

She laughed at the recollection.

From a Cent to $10,000 a Year

HOW AN ENTERPRISING NEWSBOY MADE GOOD

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever

Prominent Educator and Author of Books on the Training of Boys and Girls

SEVENTEEN years ago a ten-year-old Chicago boy began business with a capital of one penny.

This penny was invested in two newspapers at wholesale price and the two brought him two cents at retail—profit, 100 per cent.

In the space of a year the slender "newsie" was selling 1,000 papers per day, at the same spot where he had begun.

In less than two years he had added all competitors, had a thriving business and held the street corner for $75 cash—all profit and 100 per cent. nerve.

At this present date the ex-newsie is an ice cream manufacturer with a reputation for strict reliability, and his profit is $10,000 per year.

"How did he do it?" I hear a chorus of voices asking. The answer is short but a line: hard work, pluck, honesty, reliability—that is all. Point by point this interesting young business man has outlined his biography to me.

"I made up my mind from the start to be there on the minute, to waste nothing, to cut out drink and, cigarettes, to talk straight business, and simply to keep going all the time. I soon discovered that people were constantly looking for someone they could absolutely depend on. That is still one of the chief secrets of my success."

So the story enlarges. But there is more of it. The newsie was one of a group of several small children left with their penniless mother by the death of the father. And this boy earnestly begged his mother to give him the original penny and let him go out and earn something for bread—a thing which she consented to reluctantly.

And now did the boy "mess out" all competition on the busy street corner—that is a very important matter in the life history of any young man, I should say. Or make friends? "The original occupants of the corner were two grown men. He did not ask them to leave. I just sold my papers with all my might and thus got so far ahead of them that they quit and went somewhere else."

Always there on time, worked with all his might, let dissipation alone, absolutely responsible—these are the simple phrases that seem to characterise this brilliant young man who was forced to leave the public school at the sixth grade and nevertheless has struggled on to the possession of a prosperous business, a good home of his own and a happy wife and baby to grace it all.

Already he is planning to give something back to the community that has prospered him. He will set aside an increasing amount annually to endow a corner in a library for the benefit of newsboys.

The moral pointed here as plain as the rainbow is that the secret of success lies in the boy who would begin business and make his way in the world is character. So many youths believe that it is money, but they are sadly mistaken. Money comes and goes. It is a slippery thing in the hands of any one of uncertain integrity. But character goes on forever, and in time the strong will pass the dissolute, wavering one by and beat a path through many obstacles to the firm ground upon which the young man of "absolute responsibility" has opened his business.

You can do it, my boy; start with a penny and work up to $10,000 a year.

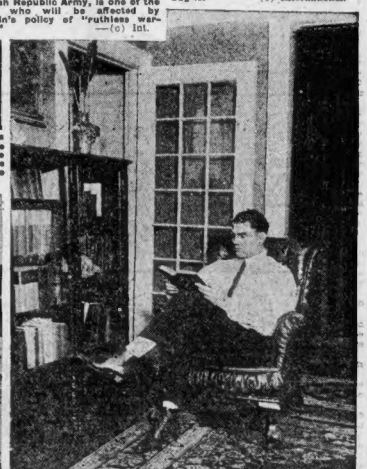
The above photograph shows a student learning to jump from a "six-story" tower built to train embryo fire fighters. This man was not hurt for he assumed the proper position. It takes considerable nerve to make the first leap. —(c) Underwood & Underwood.

GOING AGAIN. While the rest of Europe is busy fighting and telling Uncle Sam how much the war hurt them, Germany is back in full swing, working and doing things. New ideas have come in droves since the war. The latest (shown above) is a motorized ice cream cart which recently appeared on the streets of Berlin. Before the war, the owner pushed a small cart about the streets. —(c) International.



HERE'S A GOOD BET. Jack Dempsey poses for a photographer in his library at his quarters de luxe in New York. We'll bet Jack doesn't know whether the book is right side up or not. It's also a tip "straight from the stables," as they say at the track, that the books were rented with the rest of the place. Remember his shipyard p[illegible] —(c) Centra[illegible]

Wall Street Market Rallies After New Low Records

'JANUARY RISE' IS EXPECTED

Believe Downward Movement of Issues Is Over, at Least Temporarily

By BROADAN WALL.

New York, Dec. 11.—Following the establishment of new low records in many directions, the stock market showed a rally in the afternoon yesterday which in many instances wiped out the early losses and requited in net gains for the day. The rally, however, was not sufficient to carry the general list above the previous closing, so that quite a number of issues closed with net losses.

The close was irregular, but the most active stocks were left with net gains. The fact that the market developed a rally caused shorts to cover. It also induced some of the professional shorts to take the long side in the belief that a turn for the better had come.

SHORTS TAKE COVER.

At the opening most prices showed overnight declines. Since the first fifteen minutes of business a rally tendency developed, but it was of short duration. The market generally continued to search for weak spots, and when they were found the shares were promptly pounded down to new low records.

It was not until the early afternoon that persons offering short stocks in substantial volume reported that their securities had been taken or absorbed without practically any effect on prices. This was at the low point of the session, and from which the offerings were absorbed caused many professionals to come back the stocks they had sold and take the long side. This short covering gave added impetus to the upward movement, which was in full swing when the session came to a close.

SECOND BOTTOM TOUCHED.

Statisticians figured that the average price of industrials yesterday touched a second bottom. This together with the fact that the volume of business done was the greatest for any full session since the beginning of the decline without the establishment of a new low for the averages, led to the belief that the downward movement was over at least temporarily and that a good customary "January rise" might be expected.

The pool operating in American Woolen stock apparently gave up the ghost and decided that it was not less to attempt to continue supporting the issue in the face of the general down movement. The stock broke five points and touched a new low. It recovered only a fraction of a point in the late rally.

Wall Street Briefs

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal stockholders will pass on Dec. 20 on a resolution recommending an increase in authorized stock from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 and the issuance of $4,943,025 as a stock dividend. The stock pays $4 cash and $100 stock. This stock dividend would be 10 per cent.

The Minerals Separation North American Corporation has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock, payable Jan. 1, 1921, thereby placing the issue on a quarterly basis and at the rate of 6 per cent per annum. The dividend is payable to stock of record December 15, 1920.

Harris, Forbes & Co. and W. E. Hutton & Co. state that the $5,000,000 6 per cent 5-year gold notes offered by them, are all being taken.

For the nine months ended with September the Ann Arbor Railroad reports profits of $136,636 and a balance after preferred stock dividends of $385,636, as against a deficit for Dec 31, 1919, was $273,136.

The Mexican Petroleum profits for the October quarter were more than $3,000,000 and current assets on that date were more than four times current liabilities.

SMALL LOSSES IN BOSTON

But the Local List Was Weak as Well as Active; Curb Irregular

Boston stocks weakened further yesterday but after a session in which declines were the rule, closed above the lowest. Coppers, rails and specialties had a downward movement but unlesss did not a severe one. Calumet & Hecla continued to attract attention. It declined six to 355 and other issues in each new lows for the year were Calumet & Arizona, Old Dominion, U. S. Smelting, American Sugar common, Boston & Maine preferred A, Atlas Tack and Arizona Commercial. Losses to all ex-dividend were Endicott-Johnson common and preferred, Calumet & Arizona, Swift & Co. and Libby. The declins on the local exchange was fairly active and trading in unusual feature. The rally in New York caused a little improvement here.

TRADING WAS ACTIVE.

Trading was active, the turnover being but little less than for the day before. Bigheart was the leader in this respect, more than 2,000 shares being dealt in. Other especially active stocks were United Shoe, St. Mary's Land, Swift, Arizona, Davis and Davis Daly. The latter was one of the few coppers to advance. But it sold but a trifle higher. Bishkart gained a fraction as did Waltham Watch, United Shoe A and Davis, Island Creek and Massachusetts Gas. Swift & Co. declined a fraction. Agricultural Chemical was the only issue to advance more than a point. Large losses were made by U. S. Smelting, United Fruit. Point losses were recorded for Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla, Edison, Maine Central and Boston & Maine preferred A.

CURB CLOSED WEAK.

After showing a better tone and some animation at the start the Curb grew quiet and the trend became uncertain. It was downward in the afternoon and this market was rather weak at the close. It was not so active as the day before. Leaders were Texans, Black Hawk and Boston & Montana. There was little business in high priced stocks on this exchange.

Gains included United Verde Extension ¼, Verde Minos 1 cent, Superior and Pittsburg 2 cents, Ophir 4 cents, Mutual 1 cent, Gadsden ½ cent and Boston & Montana 3 cents.

Among declines were Emmerson Petroleum 1, Allied Packers ¼, Texans 4 cents, Black Hawk 1 cent, Arizona Tin Tin 2 cents, Verde 10 cents and First National 5 cents.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES

The Dorchester Trust Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, payable Dec. 15 to stock of record December 1, 1920.

Metes Central Copper finds no action on the common dividend at the Thursday meeting. Directors of Mendall & Davis Copper Conditions did not warrant it.

North Butte Mining copper production was 1,342,029 pounds against 81,800,829 in October, 1919, and 1,000,000 pounds for last year.

The Liberty Manufacturing Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, payable January 1 to stock of record December 20. The Massachusetts Corporation has been admitted as a member of the Federal Reserve system.

Richesnt will handle at its Faneuil and Dauphin terminals the entire business of the U. S. Medean Oil Corporation, which is the largest producer of crude oil in Kentucky. This will not Bigheart about $10,000 a month.

The Barrington, Vt., Traction Company increases its authorized stock resolution. Its capital stock will amount to $400,000. There are now outstanding $200,000.

The Boston & Maine will hold a meeting at 3:30 p. m., Thursday, December 16, for the purpose of voting on the proposed issue of $150,000, maturing in three equal instalments, April 20, May 20 and June 20, 1921.

Trustees for Boston Dredging Company are Charles H. Baker, Fitz Hugh Dudley and Thomas L. Wilder, the former receivers.

The Textile Finishing Company declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent, payable February 15, 1921.

The Boston Consolidate Gas Company has increased its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 through the issuance of additional shares of common stock. Its capital stock now consists of 20,000 shares common stock and 20,000 shares preferred, all of $50 par.

The Walworth Manufacturing Company reports for nine months ended Sept. 30 net income earnings after all charges and provisions for depreciation and taxes of $1,000,000, equal to $10 a share on the common stock. At close of 1919 the company had net current assets of $4,000,000. By December 31, 1920, these had increased to $5,400,000.

Copper Firm and Dull

At the end of the week the copper market was unchanged, being firm as to quotations and dull as to sales. Leading agencies are asking 14 cents a pound for electrolytic deliveries and 14¼ for the first quarter. Smaller dealers evidently expect higher prices as their tract quotes prices ranges from 14¼ to 14½ cents.

Canada Rejects Article 10 to Save Her Rights

It is a very interesting fact which will probably surprise most of the American people, that Canada, like the United States, objects to Article 10 of the League of Nations.

Mr. C. J. Doherty, the Canadian delegate to the League of Nations, now meeting at Geneva, came out of the morning session of the League of Nations the other day and gave to the press of the world the following statement with regard to Canada's position concerning Article 10.

"In introducing the resolution for eliminating Article 10 from the covenant of the league, I am only following the policy adopted from the beginning of the discussion of that article during the peace conference. We never approved it, we ratified the covenant containing it because to reject it was to reject the treaty of Versailles, but we reserved the right to take up the question again at the proper time."

When Mr. Doherty was asked if the objection of the United States to Article 10 was the motive to Canada's objection, he replied that it was not; that, on the contrary, it is a Canadian initiative from a purely Canadian standpoint.

Now though a majority of Americans, both those who oppose Article 10 and those who approve it, will be surprised that Canada should also object to Article 10, because Canada is part of the British Empire, and the British Empire is the chief beneficiary of Article 10, which guarantees the integrity of the British Empire under any circumstances which would be likely to embarrass its integrity, yet any intelligent American who considers Canada's real interest with a long look into the future will understand Canada's reason for objecting to Article 10.

Canada is today what is called a self-governing colony. That is, in practice she controls her own internal affairs nearly as freely as any other country, but this right or self-government is legally merely at the sufferance of Great Britain; legally the British authority can veto any law which Canada makes concerning her internal situation, can throw out any Cabinet officer which Great Britain dislikes and can nullify any change in the charters either of the dominion or of the dominion provinces. Even in practice Canada is an absolutely vassal State concerning foreign affairs. She has no right to declare war or make peace. When England declares war Canada is at war, when England is at peace Canada is at peace. When England wishes to declare war Canada goes to war whether it is in her interest to go to war or to remain at peace. When England wishes to make peace she makes it upon whatever terms she pleases, whether those terms please Canada or outrage Canada.

Now every intelligent Canadian understands perfectly well that what self-government the British self-governing dominions now enjoy was not the free, hearty gift of Great Britain in consequence of a reasoned policy based upon an established British principle which grew out of any set of political morals concerning liberty which the British people or the British governing class may entertain or have entertained at the time when she began to permit the self-governing colonies to practice self-government concerning their internal affairs. All intelligent British colonists understand that it is policy and not principle which has led Great Britain to permit self-government in these colonies. The Britisher is an eminently practical man. If he is entitled to distinction in any one thing it is in his capacity to learn a practical lesson. The average Englishman will not permit himself to go on the rocks on account of any principle. He never bites off his nose to spite his face and he will always take as much or as little as he can get.

Now our own war of independence taught the British Government that she could not govern a race of white people, having traditions of liberty and the capacity for self-government as she would a satrapy and as she attempted to govern all her colonies down to the time of the American revolt. She has followed Burke's generalization that you cannot govern remote places with the tight reign that you can govern places nearer home. Without conceding the principle she has permitted the practice of self-government to an extent that makes the colonies contented, but she has never changed her legal position as absolute mistress of the colonies. Her position toward the colonies has been one of policy rather than principle since in the war of independence she lost her greatest and most valued colonies. Now Canada and the other self-governing colonies do not want the whole world to guarantee to Great Britain her present legal status in the empire as the absolute mistress and source of all authority in principle and all international authority in principle and practice.

Doubtless the colonial leaders out of politeness will not give these as the reasons which control them in their denunciation of Article 10. They may say that they do not want to spend their blood and treasure guaranteeing other empires. In this, of course, they would be right, but since the great beneficiary of Article 10 is Great Britain, as the mistress of the British Empire, the real reason for the Canadian objection to Article 10 must be that she is unwilling to have the British relationship to her copper-fastened by a League of Nations.

Bonus to Soldiers Would Help Business Revive

A great deal of the failure to purchase which is threatening the country with serious business depression is due to a lack of means with which to purchase. That lack of means with which to purchase is in turn due to the lack of employment. Now is the time for the governments, State and national and city, to begin whatever work of construction they have on hand and which can be done at this season. Now is the time to do whatever must be done and put the unemployed labor back to work.

If the soldiers had their bonus they would have money to spend. To be sure the economist will tell us that that money does not come out of the air, but comes out of somebody else's pocket. Yes, theoretically. But have you ever noticed that when the workman is not prosperous, when he is out of employment, when the ordinary man has nothing with which to purchase—that is the period when we have hard times. Prosperity is not always logical or scientific, but still it is measured by the purchasing power of the ordinary citizen and not of the extraordinary citizen.

We do not say that the soldiers' bonus ought to be paid for this reason, but we do observe that the payment of the soldiers' bonus would not be a great disaster under the present circumstances. But the soldiers' bonus ought to be paid for other and far more important reasons.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Stray Spirit

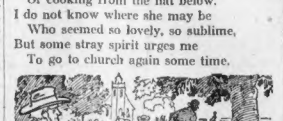
By S. E. KISER

I SAT beside her in the pew
One Sunday morning, long ago;
A lovelier maid I never knew,
And never expect to know.
We held the book between us there
And bowed our heads that holy day,
When love was in our hearts, and care
Was twenty years or more away.

HOW earnestly we sang the good
Old hymn together, she and I,
When neither of us understood
How soon youth's aspirations die.
And when her eyes looked into mine
Her cheeks took on a lovelier glow,
And I felt thrills along my spine
That Sunday morning long ago.

BACK in the sleepy village, where
The days are long, the church still stands,
And boys and girls may gather there
And kneel together, clasping hands.
Perhaps the sunlight filters through
The window, as it did that day,
To glorify some maiden who
Sees airy castles far away.

I HEAR the great cathedral bells,
They call me to arise and go;
And also I can smell the smells
Of cooking from the flat below.
I do not know where she may be
Who seemed so lovely, so sublime,
But some stray spirit urges me
To go to church again some time.



JUDGING BY THEIR ACTIONS

A lot of people seem to hold to the theory that believing in patriotism makes it unnecessary to practice it.

ADMIRABLE RESTRAINT

WORKING HARD IN A CIRCLE?

It is not how hard you work, but what you accomplish which interests the manager.

Ambition alone will never make you invaluable to your firm.

Your thought and your work must be reliable and dependable.

Plunging ahead may do more damage than service, and no business house wants thoughtless, clumsy bungling, even though speedy.

A slow, dependable, well-balanced man is worth far more than the fast worker who makes constant and costly mistakes.

Think faster than you work, look and think ahead—planning systematically and logically your moves in the right order.

If you are erratic and another man must be paid to superintend or supervise what you do you are not worth more than the commonest kind of help.

Be able to do your work so well that you can take the place of two inferior men—you can do it—if necessary, but in any case prepare to be the high-priced man yourself.

Employers are looking for men of good, reliable character in their work—men of thought and judgment enough to start things slowly and then speed up gradually and surely.

Stars and Stripes

There aren't any graduates from the School of Experience.

Every time the average man pays his electric light bill he feels like joining the sun worshippers.

"All the world's a stage," said Shakespeare. And in the present act the villains are putting on too much of the show.

Many a man has mistaken the rattle of gold for the call of ambition.

One trouble about being in on the ground floor is that when the structure collapses you have most of the ruins on your back.

Which is the more vain, the woman who looks in the mirror in the soft drink parlor, or the man, sitting behind her who thinks that she is looking at his reflection?

The glittering words of an orator often remind us that a small piece of soap can make many bubbles.

AND FOR three years.
HIS HALL bedroom.
WAS NEXT to mine.
AND AT night.
WE'D SIT around.

AND AT midnight.
HE'D ARISE.
AND SAY.
"IS YOUR laundry back?"
AND I'D tell him.
THAT IT was.
AND HE'D say.
"CAN YOU loan me.

It Has Not Been Forgotten

THOUSANDS of new books are being published, and hardly any of them about the war. The authors are right in assuming that the prevailing prices of things and the graft investigations make it unnecessary to remind us of the war by writing books about it.

A MERE MATTER OF PRINCIPLE

A good many widows get married just to show that they can, and not because of any particular liking for what they get.

All New England Aroused Over Blue Sunday

THE proposed revival of Sunday Blue Laws by congressional action has aroused Boston and New England. Interest is running higher than when the Volstead act was proposed. Advocates of a Puritanical Sunday and of a liberal Sunday are prepared to fight to the last ditch.

Tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser will describe the startling program of the Lord's Day League of New England. Reformers will tell their side. Advocates of a happy Sunday will present theirs. Among the latter is John B. Kennedy, national publicity chairman of the Knights of Columbus. He speaks right out.

Meet Mrs. Calvin Coolidge's "Aunt Mary," as dear to the new Second Lady of the Land as "Aunt Delia" was to President Taft. "Aunt Mary" makes the best mayonnaise dressing ever, and salads so delicious that "Cal" himself loves to delve into them. "Aunt Mary" will tell in the Boston Sunday Advertiser her recipe for this mayonnaise. She gives charming anecdotes of Grace Goodhue as a tiny girl, and Mrs. Coolidge describes her delightful visits to Auntie.

George Bernard Shaw continues his remarkable discussion of affairs in Ireland, England and America. Tomorrow he handles Lloyd George without gloves for British reprisals in Erin. He warns Sinn Fein it cannot fight England in the open. Turning to this country, he tells of the "tragedy of a fallen angel." He advises America not to throw stones too much, for Debs got twenty-three years "for pious remarks."

V. Blasco Ibanes has discovered a new international war. France has become jealous of the Prince of Monaco, who profits millions from his Monte Carlo gambling patrons. Cannes and Nice have built a rival Gamblers' Paradise on the Blue Coast of France. Ibanes declares the gamblers' war will rival the Siege of Troy and the famous feud over the Rape of the Bucket.

A Boston pastor has solved the problem that is perplexing the ministers of America—how to fill the empty pews on Sunday night. Motion pictures and music: Illustrated sermons; these are the answer. The success of his innovation is so great that he declares theological seminaries will yet turn out graduates church actors as well as preachers.

Ladies, you may yet be arrested for pattering along Tremont street on high heels, if ordinances now in process of passage in Beacon Hill, Wellesley and Brookline are passed. While the doctors are contending that all women are deformed by the French stilts, the boosters point to the prettier feet and the slimmer ankles. The Boston Sunday Advertiser has sounded foes and friends of high heels and will present tomorrow a striking feature on this perturbing problem.

To be a good Bostonian, the saying runs, one must like Boston baked beans, carry a Boston bag, and patronize the Boston Symphony concerts. So Boston children are being gently led into the paths they should follow. This week they have been enjoying the "Young People's Concerts" given for their benefit by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. But they are young, and they have not yet acquired the Boston chill—another thing Bostonians are famous for. Instead, Symphony Hall rang with the enthusiasm of big and little children. Read about it in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

All Somerville is stirred up over traits and sororities in the high school. Students, teachers and prominent citizens have joined issues since the secret societies were assailed as "snobbish," "exclusive" and "discriminating." Those leading the crusade, including students who have been barred, declare the fruits must go; but several members of an investigating committee have been "converted" by school society leaders. The Boston Sunday Advertiser will give the views of both sides in this merry conflict.

Pity the poor famished Harvard student! He is "kicking" because Commons charges him $9 a week for his meals, but he gets three sumptuous banquets a day for $1.29. Read in the Boston Sunday Advertiser the menus from which he picks his viands, and wonder how it's done.

New horses made out of old nags. Remarkable cures of pitiful cases have been performed and many a poor man made happy by the work of Boston veterinarians, who give their time and skill without charge. This story, illustrated, in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

George Ade's New Fables in Slang are making a hit everywhere. Tomorrow this pre-eminent humorist gets after the Grouchy Parent who keeps his poor children cowed and trembling. Dear Old Grandma arrives on the scene, hands her ill-humored son a deserved rebuke and brings joy to the long-suffering youngsters.

GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

Some Interesting Facts About Temperature; How Extreme Heat Is Produced and What Is Necessary to Make Water Boil

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

What is the greatest temperature (Fahrenheit) known? Is it possible to get 5,000 degrees of heat in the electric furnace? Can the sun be got from any other source of combustion? What is the lowest temperature water will boil at? Is it possible water will boil at 32 degrees in a perfect vacuum? T. Q. Brooklyn.

THE greatest temperatures are in the sun and the stars. The temperature of certain stars of the "B" type has been calculated as high as 20,000 degrees Centigrade, or, say, 36,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature of the sun, according to the best authorities, appears to be between 6,000 and 7,000 degrees Centigrade, or between 10,800 and 12,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

However, there are stars of two classes whose temperatures lie at, or below, 3,000 degrees Centigrade, which is less than that of the electric arc furnace as determined by the temperature at which carbon volatilizes, viz., 3,500 degrees Centigrade, or 6,300 Fahrenheit. The temperature of the gases in the arc is probably several hundred degrees higher. We have at present no means of producing a higher temperature than that of the electric arc, nor a brighter light than it gives.

The question of the temperature at which water boils introduces very interesting principles of physics. Boiling is an accelerated evaporation. Evaporation is the tendency of liquids, when not confined but left open to the air, to change from the liquid to the vaporous (gaseous) state.

This process takes place only at the exposed surface of the liquid, and usually it goes on very slowly. But if the liquid is heated the evaporation occurs more rapidly, and if the temperature is increased to the "boiling point" the process changes in such a way that thereafter the vapor is formed not merely at the surface of the liquid, but inside it.

If the heat is applied at the bottom of the vessel containing the liquid, say water, then bubbles form at the bottom and rise through the mass of the liquid to the top. When the whole of the water reaches the boiling point the rising of bubbles and their bursting at the surface becomes incessant, as long as there is water left and the temperature is maintained unchanged.

This rapid turning of the liquid into vapor, the chief occurring inside the liquid, is called boiling. Every kind of liquid has its own boiling point. This point, however, varies with the atmospheric pressure, so that in stating the boiling point of a liquid it is customary to assume that it is under ordinary air pressure, or the pressure of "one atmosphere," amounting to about fifteen pounds to the square inch at sea level.

In the case of water, the ordinary boiling point is 100 degrees Centigrade, or 212 degrees Fahrenheit. That is about the temperature at which water will begin to boil on the kitchen range, unless the range is situated either on a mountain top or far below sea level (as, for instance, on the shore of the Dead Sea), for then the boiling point may be altered several degrees, owing to the fact that as we ascend in the atmosphere the air pressure decreases, while as we descend the pressure increases. This relation between the air pressure and the boiling point of water is so regular that it has been employed as a means of measuring the height of mountains.

It depends upon the fact that in order to escape at the surface of the water the steam must exert a pressure at least equal to the atmospheric pressure, tending to restrain it.

When the air pressure is of the ordinary intensity, i. e., "one atmosphere," the steam at a temperature of 212 degrees possesses sufficient energy to escape. But, if the air pressure is considerably increased, the steam must be made proportionately hotter before it can escape, which means that the boiling point is raised. Thus, if the air pressure is doubled, or made equal to two atmospheres, the temperature at which water boils rises to about 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

If, on the contrary, the air pressure is diminished, the boiling point falls. In ascending in the atmosphere the fall of the boiling point of water amounts roughly to about one degree Centigrade for every thousand feet of ascent. Thus, on the summit of Mont Blanc the boiling point is only 85 degrees Centigrade, or 185 Fahrenheit.
